Prohibition and Gold
A Lesson, No Cash
The Unknown Speaks
Hanging for Kidnapers
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FOR THE REPUBLICAN convention telegraph companies have provided wires and operators enough to transmit 250,000 words an hour. They will be needed, for Americans like many words.

A few would suffice for the actual news, enough to tell that President Hoover has been renominated, that another man has, or has not, been chosen to take Vice President Curtis' place, and that the Republicans have adopted a prohibition plank to please the wets as much as possible, and offend the drys as little as possible.

THE REPUBLICAN party will demand a plank for the preservation of the gold standard, though the heavens fall, because the gold standard is the only reliable foundation of prosperity. Some may ask: "What KIND of prosperity? This kind or the 1929 brand?"

The old Republican party, with the sorrow of failure in her heart, will appear at her convention grasping in her arms the little gold fetish, even as a criminal goes to the electric chair having on his person something to represent his particular religion.

THE NEW German government will tell assembled nations at Lausanne that Germany can and WILL no longer pay for losing the war.

After that, the French and Italians, and the British, probably, will announce that they will not pay us. Paris announces that the French and English prime ministers have "an understanding" that includes an understanding about the debts.

THIS COUNTRY has already reduced ten billions of debt to five billions, and five billions more or less will not "make or break" the United States. The attitude of our foreign friends, which the United States should remember in future wars, is about this:

A man borrows from his friend, and later says:

"I regret to tell you that I expected to pay that debt of honor by beating another man and taking the money from him. I have beaten him, and taken a good deal from him, but I can't get any more, so you don't get paid."

We shall not get our money. But we get a lesson that ought to be useful. The next time Europe comes begging, borrowing and sobbing, it will find Uncle Sam with his fingers tightly crossed.

A DELEGATION of veterans, camping in Washington, went to pay tribute to the unknown soldier. It would not have surprised them to hear from the tomb these words:

"The country that was supposed to be so grateful doesn't know and doesn't much care who you are. It only wishes you would go home and stay home. It does not know who I am, either, and by this time, probably does not care much."

MARTIN DEPUY, alias Marshall Depew, arrested as the leader of a gang that kidnaped a woman in Kansas City, tells detectives:

"Boys, you're only wasting time. I did it. I'm going to get the noose. And I'm not afraid."

Missouri, in which the kidnaping was done, seeks to discourage that crime by punishing it with death.

Capital punishment is abhorrent, but if the five men that combined to kidnap the Missouri woman and extort $75,000 from her were all strung up at once, it might make kidnaping seem less attractive.

THE REPUBLIC of Colombia makes up its mind quickly. Ten days ago, it established "partial prohibition," stopping the sale of liquors between six in the morning and six in the evening on holidays.

The people did not like it, and the partial prohibition ceases, by presidential decree. We do not decide so rapidly. We wait until prohibition-bootlegging has financed an army of crime that will be dangerous and hard to handle if an end of prohibition cuts off their supplies of money.

DIFFERENT COUNTRIES, different troubles.

In Turkey, the price of wheat has doubled, Turks are crying for bread, and the government seeks to prevent an increase in the price.

In this country, the price of wheat has gone almost to nothing, the farmers are crying for a chance to make ends meet, and the price of bread remains as usual.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, possesses her father's sincerity. She supported the "lame duck bill" forbidding members to sit in Congress after the election of their successors, and being defeated in the primaries she will resign from Congress December 1, allowing the man elected in her place to take her seat and her salary.

This sincerity sets before other Congressmen a good example that will NOT be followed.

It is said that the Republican prohibition plank will make the national government assist with funds and enforcement, states that choose to remain dry, in case others go wet.

Such states will need much assistance probably. They will become the camping ground of all the highly-trained bootleggers and their racketeer hangers-on.

It would be difficult for states remaining dry to support the bootlegging industy in the "manner to which it has become accustomed."

Congressman Dies in House Pleading for Bonus

DRY ISSUE AVOIDED IN G. O. P. KEYNOTE

ROB WOMAN OF $12,000 CASH, GEMS

Versailles Home Ransacked By Pair; Victim Beaten, Bound; Mate Helpless

Two gunmen posing as salesmen forced their way into the home of Mrs. Julia Grace Urban, 53, at 4226 Walnut street, Versailles Township, today, beat her, tied her hands behind her, taped her mouth shut and escaped with $12,000 in cash and diamonds they took from a safew hich they forced her to open.

While they were beating her Mrs. Urban's husband, Joseph Urban, 54, who returned home lay helpless in the bed to which they tied Mrs. Urban by tape.

They also taped to a chair Louis Barto, 50, who, while taking care of the Urban garden, came into the house when he heard Mrs. Urban's screams.

TIED TWO HOURS

After ransacking the house for two hours and leaving it upset, they sped away in an auto toward Boston.

When Mrs. Urban answered their ring they said they were polish salesmen.

They flashed a gun, then demanded to know where her money was. One said:

"We know you took $9,000 from a bank in McKeesport yesterday."

Mrs. Urban refused to tell.

One of the gunmen picked up a small statue, hit her over the head.

MENACE MATE

Mrs. Urban collapsed.

When Mrs. Urban, recovering, screamed, one returned, tied her hands in the back, placed tape over her mouth.

Threatening to cut off her arm, they told her they would not harm her husband if she's open the safe.

Kline 'Fix' Defendant Collapses

By E. C. SYKES
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, Pa., June 14.—Mrs. May Scott, wife of a Pittsburgh police detective, collapsed in the courtroom today just before she was to go on trial charged with conspiracy and embracery in connection with the alleged attempt to "fix" prospective jurors in the first panel called for the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, heard here under a change of venue.

The jury which has heard the trial of Howard Gross, Pittsburgh police employe, one of the five to be tried here on the jury tampering charges, was about to retire when Mrs. Scott fainted and was taken to a nearby doctor's office.

She was to have gone on trial with her brother, Bert Dougherty, and W. H. Cook, both of Pittsburgh.

JURY QUICKLY CHOSEN

After her collapse District Attorney Edgar H. Negley asked that the trial of Lee Norris, also of Pittsburgh, and the fifth defendant, be started at once to avoid delay.

A jury was quickly selected and heard the first witness, Joseph E.

DIES MAKING PLEA FOR BONUS

Vote Delayed When House Adjourns After Eslick Is Stricken Fatally on Floor

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—A final vote on the cash bonus issue was delayed today until tomorrow when the House adjourned out of respect to Representative Eslick (Dem.), of Tennessee, who died soon after collapsing on the floor in the midst of a speech advocating full payment.

Representative Eslick died despite the efforts of several physicians, including Representative Swick, of Pennsylvania, and Dr. George Calver, House physician, who tried for nearly 15 minutes to save his life.

He died without regaining consciousness.

Eslick was carried immediately to the Speaker's lobby adjoining the House chamber. Physicians injected a medicine in an effort to stimulate his heart and tried artificial respiration but without success.

Mrs. Eslick, who was in the House gallery when her husband collapsed, fainted but quickly was revived.

She was sitting at a table two feet away from the couch on which he lay when doctors shook their heads and gave up the effort to revive him.

The House adjourned immediately.

STATE GROUP FOR MOIST STAND

'Double-Cross' Charged by Mackrell After Caucus Shuns Move for Repeal

By MARK SHIELDS
Political Editor

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, Ill., June 14.—Allegheny County delegates to the Republican national convention today charged that they had been double-crossed by State Chairman Edward Martin, who suddenly this morning laid before a delegation caucus prohibition resolutions which made no mention of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

When Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell learned on the convention floor that, with all of Allegheny County absent, the caucus had voted, 49 to 15, with 11 absent, to approve a resolution for resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead Act, he said:

"We were tricked and we were cheated."

Walter A. Bonitz, Pittsburgh brick manufacturer, and James H. Huff, Carnegie attorney, were as angry as Mackrell, and all three declared that Allegheny County

Convention Gets Under Way; State Rights Wet Plank Looms as Possibility

By BRYON PRICE

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 14. — (AP.) — In the quietest of opening sessions, the Republican convention submerged its troubles for the moment today but did not forget them.

As its keynoter, Senator Dickinson, of Iowa, talked to restless delegates and half-filled galleries about almost everything but prohibition, a group of convention chiefs sped away across town to their hotels to try to heal a new breach over the plank for resubmission.

A boom for Gen. Charles G. Dawes to replace Vice President Curtis as President Hoover's running mate spread in every direction, and a real battle looked probable.

DELEGATES RESTLESS

The convention session itself took no official note of these things. It was given over wholly to formalities, most of them so dry that delegates and spectators paid little attention. They talked and walked about so much that even the big voice of the keynoter could not pierce the continuous murmur.

When he mentioned the name of Herbert Hoover and urged his re-election as a "dependable means to restoration of normal conditions, there was just a momentary burst of cheering. When he ran quickly over the name of Dawes, he aroused some subdued handclapping. Mostly, his pronouncements of party principle were scarcely listened to at all.

The block of passive faces lifted from the delegate section testified that the delegates were preoccupied with other things.

Administration leaders intent upon defeating the forces of repeal by drafting an acceptable

CLERGY TO SIFT DR. RULE'S PLEA

The Pittsburgh Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church today voted to investigate the proposed retirement from the ministry of the Rev. Dr. Victor A. Rule, whose resignation as pastor of the Edgewood church was accepted last night by members of the congregation.

The presbytery accepted Dr. Rule's resignation as pastor at Edgewood, but the judiciary committee, to which a letter of withdrawal was referred, recommended that, in accordance with the rules of the church, action on his voluntary retirement be withheld until his reasons are set forth.

Retirement from the ministry may be authorized only if "sufficient reasons" are advanced, it was pointed out. The letter which Included in the list of those furloughed are 11 transfer clerks, 11 assessors and 90 in the transcribing department.

His office at the Capitol was told he felt much better although his cough was severe. He continues to hold short conferences with close friends on the cogressional legislative situation.

Man Killed In Battle Over Flag

Frank Kaminsky, 43, of 306 Sarah street, Bryn Mawr, died in McKeesport Hospital, the victim, police said, of a fight over the American flag, which occurred during a drinking party in Versailles Township.

Harry Podroskery, 48, was arrested by Constable Charles Ulm and lodged in the McKeesport Police Station, after other members of the party had, according to police, told of a fight between him and Kaminsky in which Kaminsky fired a rifle shot over Podroskery's head and the latter reciprocated by striking him on the head with a wagon shaft, knocking him unconscious.

Pastor, Lawyer to Debate Sunday Laws on WCAE

Arguments for an against on Pennsylvania's Sunday laws will be presented in a debate between a lawyer and a clergyman Friday night when the Rev. Dr. James McQuilkin, Carnegie pastor, and Attorney C. F. C. Arensberg, well-known civic leader, debate on "Resolved, That Pennsylvania's Sunday Law Should Be Repealed."

A month ago two well known Pittsburghers, Mrs. William Maclay Hall and the Rev. Dr. J. E. Wagner, pastor of Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church, debated the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Dr. Wagner presenting the prohibition argument, and Mrs. Hall the anti-dry side of the question.

The blue law debate will be on Station WCAE from 10 to 10:15 p. m. The rebuttal will be over the same station the following night from 8 to 8:15 o'clock. Each speaker will be allotted seven minutes.

Dr. McQuilkin is pastor of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church and a director of the Western Pennsylvania Sabbath Association.

Attorney Arensberg, taking the affirmative side, will be the first speaker Friday night, while Dr. McQuilkin, with the negative, will be first with the rebuttal the following night.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD R. GANN . . . VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS' SISTER FIGHTING FOR HIM

Curtis G. O. P. 'Goat,' Says Rogers

By WILL ROGERS

CHICAGO, June 14.—Well, got some scandal for you today, for it wouldn't be a Republican convention without some sort of undercover juggling. They are out now to throw poor old Injun Charley Curtis off and get another Vice President.

Now they are trying t odo this at the last minute. They wouldn't tell him a few months before and let him run and get his seat back in the Senate. Their alibi is that he is too old in case something happened to the President. Well, they knew a few months ago how old he would be about now.

What they are after, only they haven't got the decency to come right out and say it, is:

"We are in the hole and we got to try and dig up somebody that will help us swing some votes. Its not your age, Charley; its not your party loyalty. You got to be the goat. Not us. So anyone we can think of that can carry the most votes we are going to nominate em, be it Charley Chaplin or Amelia Earhart. You been a good Injun, but it's votes, not sentiment, we are after this year. So long, Charley, take care of yourself."

My candidate for President on both parties blew in here yesterday, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He and I may huddle on plans.

The alternates are camped on the edge of town and are being cared for by the Salvation Army. They say they are going to stay till they get badges as big as the ones the delegates have.

If the House votes the soldiers the bonus today we are arranging a window for the Secretary of the Treasury to jump out of.

The vice presidential candidates, in case they throw Curtis, are Charley Dawes, Pat Hurley and Hanford MacNider.

Lots of beautiful ladies lobbying for the anti-drys. If a man will just act doubtful he can get a lot of attention.

THE PROBLEM

MORE than $3,000,000 was spent in Pennsylvania for direct relief during March, figures just compiled by the United States Department of Labor show. Welfare leaders say even that amount, which was 57 per cent more than the amount spent the same month of the previous year, was inadequate.

THE REMEDY

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

FLOWERS FOR OFFICIALS PAID FOR BY COUNTY, PROBE TOLD

BLOOMS BILLED AS FERTILIZER, WORKER SAYS

More Employes Testify on Free Work at Inquiry; Defense to Be Heard

The flowers which Joseph Lorenzo sent to county officials in appreciation of his appointment as head of the county landscaping department were paid for by the county, a witness related today in the investigation of the county government.

The flowers—$500 worth—were ordered from an East Liberty shop around Christmas of 1930 and were billed to the county as fertilizer, the witness added. He said one official to receive flowers from Lorenzo, who succeeded his father, was the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

EMPLOYE TESTIFIES

The witness, an employe in the Department of Bridges, was one of four heard today, after which the hearings were postponed to 10 a. m. Thursday to allow Leo G. Riordan, chief county investigator, and his assistants to check the stories of various witnesses.

Riordan announced that next week Paul B. Ris, director of county parks, and other at whom testimony has been directed, will be invited to appear to explain their side.

Today an Allison Park resident charged that within the last week two men had removed the wire cable and substituted board in a fence which the witness said the county had built along the driveway on the property of John Shrader in Allison Park.

TELLS OF PAINTING

A county painter admitted doing work on the property of Joseph Ciauza, former road superintendent, but said the work was on his own time and not with county material.

A blacksmith in No. 6 division of the Bureau of Roads, told of turning over to William Kauffeld, clerk to then Supt. Jabez Cooper, money which workmen turned back to him.

Dan Houlahen, superintendent of No. 3 division of county roads, was the subject for much discussion in the office of the probers yesterday. Former and present employes in his division gave statements regarding the building of a wall for Houlahen's brother-in-law.

The wall built for Houlahen's brother-in-law was constructed by county laborers and the material was hauled to the scene in county trucks, a witness stated. He also stated Houlahen placed cinders on a road, a mile long, leading from the Frankstown road to the Marblegate roadhouse in Penn Township. This witness said Houlahen spent much of his leisure time at the roadhouse.

DISMISSED MAN PAID

This witness, a former county watchman, said a check made out to a man who had been dismissed months before, was cashed by another employe who turned the cash over to Houlahen. It also was stated that Houlahen and two other men bought a truck from the Verona Automobile Company and that it was used for hauling county supplies and workmen. It was related that one man was paid hourly for driving the truck for the county at the same time he was receiving a check as a member of a road gang.

Another witness stated that he helped construct conmrete steps on the property of a Mr. Boninni, who was a county road foreman. Boninni lives near Carnegie.

A former county truck driver stated he had received $10 extra in his pay and was directed to turn the extra money into the division office in Carnegie. He said he gave the money to Louis Cooper, Pitt law student and son of Jabez Cooper, the former division superintendent. Other witnesses testified that young Cooper, while attending Pitt, was carried on the payroll of the county, working for his father.

RETURNED WAGES

A former laborer at the Carnegie division headquarters stated that he had returned a total of $107 from his pay. He declared that on one occasion he was directed to return $20, but gave only $17. He said he was forced to get the $3 and return it later. This witness also said he was dismissed last September and that he had applied to Superintendent Cooper for reinstatement. He said Cooper refused to re-employ him unless paid money.

REAL COMPETITION — By Quin Hall

Dr. Rule sent to the presbytery through one of its members simply stated that he wished to retire out of consideration for the welfare of "Christ's church."

PASTOR'S WIFE WORRIED

Homesickness was the reason for the preacher's sudden departure, one member of the congregation had explained, but up until a late hour yesterday Dr. Rule had not returned to his wife in Phoenix, Ariz. She was quoted as being worried about the financial future of her three children and herself and wondering why one of the preacher brothers of her missing husband, who profess to know where he is, have failed to tell her how she can communicate with him.

Mrs. Rule had been planning to come with the children to Edgewood at the close of school this season. She was astonished when he dropped from sight and is seeking explanations and verification or discredit of the rumors that spread through the Edgewood community with Dr. Rule's disappearance.

But no explanation was offered and none was asked by the 50 members meeting in the church. The business session was quickly handled with the Rev. Dr. J. W. Snyder, superintendent of missions of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, as chairman.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

No time was lost in the presenting of a motion by A. C. Manning, a member of the official board, for acceptance of the brief resignation read by H. B. Rhule, clerk of the session. The letter addressed to the congregation, the text of which was denied to newspapers, requested the acceptance of the resignation and presentation of it to the Presbytery. Following its quick acceptance, Rhule and G. C. Blackmore, chairman of the board of trustees, were named as a committee to present the action before the Presbytery.

A correspondence committee was immediately elected to serve in the selection of a new pastor. The members named were Wynne Morris, representing trustees; Tracey Morrison, deacons, and Mrs. C. E. Willock, Mrs. T. S. Grubbs and J. F. Miller, the congregation.

OFFICER'S WIFE ENDS LIFE

LATROBE, June 14.—When Police Lieut. Tom Griffin went home after night duty today, he laid his revolver on a table and went into the kitchen to wash his hands before eating breakfast.

Seconds later he heard a shot. He found his wife, Mrs. Jemimah Griffin, 35, fallen across the ironing board over which she had been working, according to police. She died before a physician arrived.

The Griffins had two children.

PROPOSES CURB ON STOCK DEALS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Full publicity on the operations of corporations was recommended to the Senate Banking Committee today by Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard University, to prevent stock manipulations.

Ripley, a noted economist, was called as a surprise witness in the committee's investigation of the New York stock market. He said:

"When a man tries to run a bull pool or bear pool he does it by disseminating false information."

Ripley recommended that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, with assets of more than a certain fixed amount, be required to file current reports on earnings, depreciation and other operating facts with the government.

Ex-Policeman Gets Term for Perjury

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—John J. Stiglin, 32, former member of the police vice squad, was sentenced today to two and one-half to five years in Sing Sing Prison. He was convicted May 23 of perjury in his testimony in Women's Court March 11, 1929, when he arraigned two women on vagrancy charges.

Identify Victim Slain as Prowler

The alleged prowler who was shot dead as he entered a kitchen window of the home of Henry Heinrich, dairy proprietor, of 201 Crest street, Clairton, early yesterday, was identified at the morgue today as Frank B. Schmidt, 35, of 1435 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, a printer.

The identification was made by his brother-in-law, Thomas Kane. Kane said Schmidt had been out of work for several months.

Lost Flier's Plane Found in Australia

WYNDHAM, Australia, June 14.—(AP.)—The airplane of Capt. Hans Bertram, German flier who has been missing since he left Kupang, Timor Island, for Darwin, Australia, May 17, was found today near the Drysdale mission, not far from here.

A message found in the plane said Capt. Bertram and his companion had gone into the bush. An intensive search was begun to find them.

FLIER'S RESCUE AT SEA TOLD BY SKIPPER

Hausner Recovering From Days of Exposure; Not Yet Able to Relate Story

This story of the rescue of Stanislaus Feliz Hausner, New York-to-Warsaw flier, was radioed to the Associated Press by Capt. James Wilson, Wilson, master of the steamship Circe Shell, which picked him up in the Atlantic.

By CAPT. JAMES WILLIAM WILSON
Master of the S. S. Circe Shell.

S. S. CIRCE SHELL, June 14.

"I'm Stanley Hausner; save my ship."

With these words the Polish flier who had drifted miles on the Atlantic on his wrecked airplane greeted us when we found him.

He literally fell into the lifeboat which we had lowered to fetch him, and he was helped aboard my ship in almost complete darkness. He said:

"Thanks very much, captain. I've been waiting for you for eight days."

Then he collapsed.

He almost missed being rescued, for the darkness was falling rapidly.

SIGHTED BY LOOKOUT

It was very difficult to see, but the lookout on the Circe Shell sighted something ahead. It looked like a drifting buoy, but he could make out some peculiar markings on the top.

He picked up his long-glass and trained it on the object. He saw then what he had thought was a buoy was really an airplane, with its tail sticking up in the air.

Right away when he had told me what he saw I stepped to the engine room telegraph and signalled my engineer to cut the speed.

We slowed down and moved closer. We got to within one mile of the derelict and then I stopped the ship. We drifted and slowly closed in.

My men, watching from the rail, were amazed to see the figure of a man which seemed to be lashed to the machine.

WAVES FRANTICALLY

We blew a blast on the ship's siren and the figure moved. He waved frantically. We could see now that he was not lashed down.

Right away I ordered a lifeboat away. It was manned by volunteers under my second officer.

From the bridge I watched them row away. When they were about 50 feet from the airplane they hailed him and the flier answered in English.

There was a rough sea running and it was getting worse and we were afraid the airplane might founder at any moment.

But my men were able to reach it in time to take off the exhausted aviator.

We contented ourselves with supplying Hausner with his immediate necessities of water and food. An examination revealed only superficial cuts, bruises and sores, all external injuries and none of them serious.

At the time of my sending this radio the airman is progressing splendidly. He did not sustain any obvious internal injuries, but continues seemingly incapable of discussing his experiences.

MRS. GEORGE HORACE LORIMER . . . OUTSPOKEN AMONG DRYS

Saelor, a farmer living near Chicora, testify:

"Norris told me that anything I would do for Mr. Kline, he would make it right with me."

The witness said he had known Norris for a long time and that the defendant had called him from a field where he was working late in February to a roadside fence.

There, Sealor testified, Norris asked him if he had been called for jury service and, upon being told that he had, said:

"You know the Kline case is coming up and he is a very nice man."

WAVERS UNDER QUIZ

Under cross-examination, however, the witness wavered and admitted in reply to questions by Defense Attorney William Martin, of Butler, that he wasn't sure whether Norris or Mrs. Norris had said "it would be made right" if he aided Mayor Kline.

Sealor also admitted under Martin's rapid fire of questions that the remark had been made while he was in the Norris car with the defendant and his wife and not while he was talking to Norris across the fence.

Saelor was the only witness called by the prosecution.

DENIES KNOWING KLINE

Norris took the stand and denied that he knew Mayor Kline. He testified he had been appointed to a city position, but had not been promised it or awarded it for talking to Saelor.

Mrs. Norris testified that neither she nor her husband had said anything to Saelor about "fixing" the Kline case. She said she knew Mayor Kline because he once lived near her in Fisk street.

Gross' case went to the jury at 11:20 a. m., Pittsburgh time, after heated arguments by Negley and Defense Attorney James F. Callahan, of Pittsburgh.

He is charged with embracery, specifically attempting to influence Elizabeth Gormley, a member of the jury panel. Three other counts against him, involving three other prospective jurors, were dismissed yesterday.

CLASH ON LIQUOR

When court opened both defense and prosecution waived rebuttal and Attorney Callahan launched at once into his address to the jury.

He declared that the prosecution had failed completely to show evidence of embracery—the legal term for jury fixing—and that Gross had not attempted in any way to influence prospective jurors or their friends.

District Attorney Negley's address was a bitter attack upon Gross and his testimony. He said:

"If there ever was an exhibition of fancy lying in this court, I think it was when Gross was on the stand yesterday.

"Father Clifford said he never saw him until March 1 when he came to call on him. Gross said he had known Father Clifford for many years.

Thwart the attempt to buy justice in the courts by saying by your verdict no man like this can come in here and besmirch it.

"I don't know that Mayor Kline had anything to do with this. There was no attempt made to prove that.

"It may be that the people involved with the jury fixing were simply trying to ingratiate themselves."

CONTRADICTS WITNESSES

Gross, who posed as a jury investigator, but would not say whom he represented, was the only witness called by the defense after the commonwealth rested yesterday afternoon.

Gross contradicted all of the witnesses on some points and refuted part of the testimony of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who unexpectedly was called to the stand by Negley.

The real excitement of the first day's trial came when Attorney Callahan, representing Gross, asked Hardee Hepler, chief of Butler County's detectives, if Gross had not been given a half tin cup of whisky in Negley's office the day Gross was arrested and taken there.

Negley explained he had only given Gross a tablespoonful of whisky in a tumbler, to steady Gross' nerves, as the man appeared to have a hangover.

Weather Conditions.

There is now a well defined low over the central plains and another center in the Far Northwest. The eastern low covers most of the country from the Rocky Mountains eastward and is causing cloudy weather over most of that section. The rainfall for the last 24 hours was light, generally, but moderately heavy over several sections. High pressure, centered over the Central Rocky Mountain section, is producing clear skies over most of the Rocky Mountain states. Temperature changes were unimportant.

WOMEN ADMIT FALSIFYING AT BELL TRIAL

Tell of Threats in Giving Evidence Against Bledsoe; Former Friend on Stand

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 14.—Only three witnesses were heard this morning in the trial of R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stengoni, while the state sought to build a stone wall of evidence in the Donohoe murder case.

Mrs. Lemmie Johnson Redman was called to corroborate the shattered testimony given yesterday by Mrs. Hannah Reed, who admitted testifying falsely in the trial of Tony Bell two years ago, because "she had reasons." Mrs. Redman, under cross-examination, also said she testified differently at the Bell trial for the same reason. She identified Stengoni as one of the two foreigners who came to her and Mrs. Reed and told them to keep their mouths shut.

Roy Redman, her husband, verified the time of their return home the night of the murder, saying he had watched from the home of her brother across the street until 4 a. m. He testified he was prompted by jealousy.

Elsie Ritenour, upon whose testimony the commonwealth hopes to break down Bledsoe's Maryland alibi, told of the trip she made with Bledsoe the day before the killing, but had not reached the hour of their return when court recessed.

Barr during his cross-examination of Mrs. Reed yesterday succeeded numerous times in tangling the woman on roads she said she had traversed from her home in Marianna, Washington County, through Fayette County into Uniontown and back to the scene of the killing.

She ascribed her reticence at the previous trial to threats made against her "unless she kept her big mouth shut."

Barr, reading from her testimony, said:

"Mrs. Reed, is it not a fact that in answer to the question, 'You couldn't gave a description of that man at all?' referring to the man in the automobile, you answered, 'No, sir?'"

The witness answered:

"I believe I did."

"Why?"

DRYS PADLOCK OBEY HOUSE

A padlock for liquor law violations was ordered clamped on the first floor bar and drinking room of the famous old Obey House, 1327 Steuben street, for one year by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today. Horace H. Townsend and Samuel B. Esplen were named proprietors in injunction proceedings made final today. Townsend and Beulah Townsend were named owners. Prohibition agents testified that while the temporary injunction was pending they found a quantity of beer on the premises on June 8.

The Lotus Club and property at 2310 Sidney street were placed under injunction for one year. The order may be modified by posting $1,000 against further violation.

Cases against Moose lodges at Bentleyville, Kittanning, McKeesport, Verona, Finleyville and Latrobe were to be disposed of later, along with suits against Garfield Post 699, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at 6113 Penn avenue, and Den No. 83, Fraternal Order of Bears, at Meadowlands.

Extortion Suspect Shot Fleeing Arrest

DETROIT, June 14.—(AP.)—Charles Schwenk, of Port Huron, Mich., a former railroad engineer, was shot last night by police who charged him with attempting to extort $1,000 from a River Rouge business man.

Police said Schwenk was shot as he fled with a dummy package which he believed contained the $1,000. They said he attempted to obtain the money under threats from Clarence R. Avery, music store proprietor.

Homeless Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ketko and their three children were living at South Side Police Station today, evicted from their Mint way home for non-payment of rent. Ketko said they were evicted yesterday by a constable and their furniture placed on the street. The rent for six months was $72. Police collected $9 for the family.

Chaplin Calls Financiers 'Great Comedians'

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 14.—(AP.)—Charlie Chaplin believes the financiers are great comedians in the role of economists.

The actor discussed economic conditions when he arrived here yesterday from the Orient, nearing the end of his round-the-world tour. He said:

"I'm reputedly a comedian, but after seeing financial condition of the world, I have decided I'm as much an economist as financiers are comedians. People everywhere want more material benefits and the privileges that go with wealth.

"Financiers will have to take less profit and they will have to get on a basis of larger volume of business and smaller return."

The actor said he would start work on another silent picture when he reaches Hollywood.

Hurdy Gurdy Music Comes High—$10 an Hour

There is a great future ahead for the man who gets himself a hurdy-gurdy and a monkey, according to P. T. Craig, Sewickley oil man.

Craig has been searching every corner of Pittsburgh during the last week for an organ grinder and a monkey. He is giving a birthday party tomorrow afternoon in Sewickley for his great nephew, and was hoping to have one of these once-famous combinations on hand to amuse the small guests.

After more than a week of inquiring and advertising Craig has found only one organ grinder with his monkey and, according to Craig, the man wants $30 for three hours' work.

Concerning the high price, Craig said:

"I think I'll have to get a hurdy-gurdy and a monkey. There is more money in that business than there is in the oil business today."

GIBBONS VIVIDLY DESCRIBES BUSTLE OF CONVENTION CITY

SEES NOTABLES; FLAGS DRAPE CHICAGO

Magnitude of Arrangements For G. O. P. Gathering Impresses Correspondent

By FLOYD GIBBONS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Hello, everybody.

Here they come. Pouring out of the Loop. Over the river if the bridge ain't up. And bang into the old West Madison street brownstone front and colored glass window district.

Yes, sir. Cabinet officers—White House social queens. Peerless leaders—yep, and beerless leaders also. Tall sycamores from the little Calumet River. Sturdy pines from the North. They're all coming right our way.

It's opening day for the Republican National Convention. The sixth time a Republican presidential candidate has been picked in this century.

And here we are right before the Chicago Stadium.

No wonder the boys and girls have been stringing out over those flag-draped streets since almost daylight. Been having trouble myself. Yes sir. Lost in my old home town.

Back in the old days, they used to pick the winners at the Coliseum. That big arena was new then. Looked as much like a castle as Mrs. Potter Palmer's house on the drive.

STADIUM BUILT

Then, here of late, Chicago took to building stadiums. One's out on the lake front. Well, I herded my taxi driver out there.

Lots of other folks did, too. Couldn't find a convention there, so we jiggered down to the old Coliseum and there wasn't any convention there.

So I guessed this new stadium, three miles from where I started, due west to the old district where you had to belong to the gang or else.

Well, all these folks filling West Madison street belong to the gang, too. If they didn't and if they have forgotten the pasteboards their county chairman got for them, they're in hard luck. Hundred dollars apiece being offered for bootleg admission cards today.

Let's stand out here in front and take a look at the place where 1,153 delegates—that isn't counting Senator Borah, who wouldn't come to our party—are going to sit and think and think and then pick Herbert Hoover to lead the ticket.

Yes, Mrs. Jones, I counted those delegates. And there are 1,154 alternates. Wright Patterson has just figured it up and says they've traveled a total of 2,800,000 miles. Yes, and spent $46,000 in carfare and gasoline.

That brings 'em right to this spot. A great big, white, smooth limestone building about four stories high. Flag poles sticking up along the cornice. All around the top a carved frieze. Six-day bicycle riders. Hammer throwers. Javelin slingers. Shot putters. Marathon runners. That means this is the home of sport. Sport is right. It's the Republican Olympiad.

BIG STEEL CANOPY

Down over the center of the three main entrances is a big steel canopy. A big electric sign—"stadium." And just inside the main foyer are two little pink and white marble ticket booths. Only there aren't any pretty blonde ticket sellers there. No, sir. Hard-boiled lads that aren't going to let any phoney tickets get by.

Theatrical. That's right, too. The Republican collossal superfeature four-reeler.

Park the old buses, boys and girls, on those cinder patches that stretch for a block on each side of this temple of sport and amusement. Let's go inside and watch the place fill up.

Look at all those new red chairs. Must be room for a hundred thousand people.

Right down there where they put the ring for the prize fights are seats for the Kansas, Idaho, Wyoming, Arizona and Colorado delegates.

Smack down in front—in the bald-headed row—are the Maine and California delegations. Over there on the left is Alabama and Massachusetts. And those two on the aisle, center, are Hawaii and the Philippines. Boy, how those boys traveled.

Looks from here that there are as many press seats as delegate seats. Must be 900 reporters here at those pine tables flanking the speakers' platform.

And that platform. Doesn't look as though anything big would happen there. Just a few oak desks and chairs. Couple of loud speakers and arm chairs for the chosen few.

Maybe these Chicago hosts don't know how to hang up flags. None of that old Fourth of July bunting. Honest to goodness flags and panels of red, white and blue. Doggone near makes you want to cheer before anything happens.

But shucks. We've been looking at delegates. There are lots of others to look at, too. There's Mrs. Dolly Gann, for instance.

Guess some of those Washington officials thought they were stirring up things when they arrived. Well, Mrs. Gann—you know she brought her husband along this time—showed them something. There's a society tiff with Mrs. Bertha Baur, the Chicago lady who's head of the Woman's National Republican Club.

Sparks are still flying from that collision.

Sarah Butler—that's Nick's daughter—is down there with the New York delegation. She's a politician, too. Wet? Yes, sir. So's Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms—the likely looking lady over there shaking hands with the Illinois home folks.

Mrs. Charles Sabin—well, she's no Carrie Nation—is over there with a big hat posing for the photographers.

And look, look, look. Walter Newton and Larrie Ritchie. Practically half of Hoover's flock of secretaries. And Pat Hurley and Secretary Stimson and Postmaster Walter Brown. Straight from the inner White House circles.

Hoover to Be 'Sentenced' 4 More Years, Baer Says

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

CHICAGO, June 14.

Mr. Hoover is America's first television candidate.

He ain't coming to Chicago. Nobody mentions his name in Chicago. And for the first time in the history book there are no pictures of the candidate in the convention city.

This is a convention without a cheer, without a parade, without enthusiasm and probably without a reason.

Mr. Hoover gets all his information over the long distance telephone. His secretary is here drinking tea and gadding about.

Secretary Richey is the administration ear. Mr. Hoover remains in Washington to make good his oath to haunt the White House night and day for four years.

Any time Secretary Richey thinks he has some info. that will interest Mr. Hoover and be of no value to the rest of the country. He picks up the nickel broadcasting set and murmurs soft and low:

"Mr. Hoover, this is your astral body. I'm out in Chicago."

Hoover:

"Has anybody mentioned prosperity?"

Richey:

"Nope. That's a fighting word, this year."

Hoover:

"How about the Eighteenth Amendment?"

Richey:

"Well, Nicholas Murray Butler is trying to pick that nail out of the tire."

Hoover:

"Don't let him do that. You know that's my pet puncture. Ask Butler if he wants to be ambassador to somewhere."

Richey:

"Why not give him the Vice President nomination?"

Hoover:

"That ain't a nomination. That's a grand jury recommendation for solitary confinement."

Richey:

"Well, Herbert, this Butler is a tough woman to shave. He's been scolding college students for 50 years and that ain't used to being contradicted."

Hoover:

"Well, what does he want?"

Richey:

"He wants beer."

Hoover:

"Well, does he have to go to Chicago for that? Any Columbia student can steer him to a speaky within a 100 yards of his college."

Richey:

"That ain't all, prexy. Guess who got here yesterday? John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Rudy Vallee."

Hoover:

"What are those two crooners doing?"

Richey:

"Rudy is singing the Maine stein song and John D. is banging on the table."

Hoover:

"How about the delegates? Have they all been instructed? They ain't going to bolt, are they?"

Richey:

"They think the convention is being held in three places. In the Turkish baths in the morning, the stadium in the afternoon and the beer flats at night. They gotta vote for you or they don't get their carfare home."

Hoover:

"Then you think I'll get the nomination?"

Richey:

"Think you'll get it? You're sure of it. They're going to make you stay there another four years and suffer with the rest of us."

Hoover:

"Has anybody in Chicago got a letter from Coolidge?"

Richey:

"Not since stamps went up to three cents."

Hoover:

"That's good. Now, listen to this. Shove me through on the first ballot. Don't give those delegates a chance to think."

Richey:

"Okay. Call you back in a few minutes. Say, how about those Legionnaires camped around the White House? Are they annoying you?"

Hoover:

"Oh, I took care of them. I pulled the shades down."

Richey:

"So long."

WOMEN TAKE SPOTLIGHT AT CONVENTION

Dolly Gann, Ruth McCormick And Alice Longworth Active at G. O. P. Meet

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP.)—Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth, in person, Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, with a home-state fight, and Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, back on her Illinois stamping ground, today took the white light from Republican conventioning women.

They even relegated into second place the dry fight, with Mrs. Henry Peabody, a prohibitionist, publicly chiding John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Charles Sabin being named anti-dry strategist to help two men plan the floor fight.

DOLLY LAUDS BROTHER

Dolly Gann, breezing in from pre-convention speeches, said her brother, Charles Curtis, "deserves renomination and everybody knows it."

Alice Longworth, cured of whooping cough, chatted vivaciously with leaders and left the dopesters guessing about her vice presidential views.

Ruth Hanna Simms had her old crowd of Illinois Republican women hanging on her every word, as she plunged straight into convention politics and challenged them to "forget bridge and golf and go to work."

Declaring the present primary system was "playing havoc" with the party, she put that issue above prohibition and favored resubmission of the latter question to the people in an "off year" to avoid "befogging all issues."

HOOVER PRAISED

To the same crowd, Mrs. Yost, heading national woman's activities for the party, said Herbert Hoover's home ownership and child welfare program had "fully justified" women's faith, and predicted 1932 returns would show "women of America have not parted from their standard bearer."

Back of the scenes, Mrs. Yost was embroiled in a fight to save her 12-year job as West Virginia committeewoman from her opponent of 1928, Mrs. J. Gale Evart, of Parkersburg. Walter Hallanan, committeeman for that state, said home women were complaining that Mrs. Yost was "out of touch" with them, due to her national position.

REPEAL FOUGHT BY MRS. BOOLE

CHICAGO, June 14.—(INS.)—Contending that "the vast majority of American women are opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment" and that no party can win which "ignores the convictions of the women," Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National and World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, today broadcast an appeal for observance and enforcement.

In an address over the WEAF network of the National Broadcasting Company, she said:

"The opponents of prohibition now ask its repeal, their efforts to legalize beer having failed in both the Senate and House."

"The proposal for state control would leave the matter just where it was before national prohibition was adopted. The impact of national repeal would encourage violations of law and result in the adoption of a variety of laws with a border line around every state.

"We believe prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic and until a better method is proposed, we will oppose repeal, no matter in what form it may appear."

Noted Women Divide On Repeal of Dry Law

Mrs. Archie Roosevelt Decries High Cost Of Enforcement

By MRS. ARCHIE ROOSEVELT
National Secretary of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

CHICAGO, June 14.—(INS.)—I have been asked what in my opinion is the most important question before the country today. Without hesitation, my answer is economy.

Every housewife knows this does not mean to save with one hand and spend with the other in the hope that the left hand will not know what the right hand does. Yet this very simple truth does not seem to have penetrated to Congress.

As national secretary of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, my first interest naturally is repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In this time of great economic distress, it seems a terrible tragedy that our government is spending over $1,000,000,000 in a futile attempt to enforce a law which has proven absolutely unenforceable, but has built up and financed a criminal class.

Millionaires Behind Rum Plea, Says Lucy Peabody

By LUCY W. PEABODY
Chairman, Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The Eighteenth Amendment is a smokescreen for the capitalists of this country who are finding it hard to digest their income taxes, and with the assistance of the bankers are determined to control the whole situation.

Instead of coming to the relief of the poor and suffering, they are continuing the depression which Wall street brought on us for their own ends.

When Mr. Du Pont proposes a beer tax to relieve him and his wealthy friends of their income taxes, it is simply the old game of greed. You cannot serve God and mammon, and in a democracy you cannot put people under the heel of capitalists.

Economic conditions are so serious that to interject a grave issue like the wet and dry question is a dangerous matter. We would much rather get on the road to bread than the road to beer.

We will not vote for a wet candidate or for a dry man on a wet platform. We will not yield to a threat of rebellion.

If men think women are changing their minds, they are much mistaken.

Dunn Broadcasts Tableland Greeting

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, sent greetings to 100,000 residents of the Allegheny tablelands in a radio address last night from station KDKA. The broadcast was the forerunner of a trip of inspection of the tablelands to be made by 60 Pittsburgh businessmen, civic leaders and educators Thursday and Friday.

BISHOP LEONARD WARNS PARTIES ON REPEAL

New M. E. Leader Here Declares Democrats, G.O.P. Are 'Playing With Fire'

Both political parties are playing with fire when they advocate the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, declared here today. Bishop Leonard, formerly of the Buffalo area, recently assigned to Pittsburgh, came to the home of the Rev. Dr. John B. Magee, Bellevue, to preside over the one hundred and ninth session of the Pittsburgh Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church.

SILENT ON POLITICS

The Bishop refused to discuss recent political developments, the conventions of the two major parties or the recent letter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., advocating repeal. He did say, however:

"I feel that both political parties are playing with fire when they attempt to set up the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment as a policy. I am sure there is a great deal more quiet dry sentiment among the good citizens of this country than a great many political leaders realize, and if the question of repeal is put to a vote, this sentiment will find surprising and emphatic expression at the polls."

Bishop Leonard, after a greeting by the district superintendents, said he was glad to come to the Pittsburgh area, his father having been pastor of the Old Brimstone Corner Methodist Church, at Seventh avenue and Smithfield street, shortly after the Civil War.

GUEST OF PASTOR

Bishop Leonard is the guest of the Rev. Dr. Magee, retiring pastor of the Bellevue church, in which the conference is being held. Dr. Magee was recently called to Seattle, Wash.

Conference activities today included examinations for prospective ministers, reception to the Bishop and members of the conference at 7:30 p. m., followed by an address by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

HOOVER PRESS AGENT BACK

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(INS.)—A touch of political "old-time religion" descended upon the White House today as the Republican national convention opened in Chicago to nominate President Hoover to succeed himself in office for another four years.

Coincident with the gathering of the high and low moguls of the Republican clansmen in the Windy City, George Akerson, former secretary to Mr. Hoover and generally credited with building up the publicity machine which "put across Hoover" in the 1928 campaign, returned to the executive offices of the White House to take charge of the President's press relations during the coming trying months.

Ostensibly, Akerson, who resigned his secretarial position in March, 1931, to take an executive job with the motion picture industry, was drafted to "help out" around the executive offices during the absence of Lawrence Ritchie, another of President Hoover's secretaries, at the Chicago convention.

It was learned, however, that President Hoover has become concerned during recent weeks over what he regards as "bad breaks" with publicity from the White House.

MEANS GUILTY IN LINDY HOAX

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Gaston B. Means, the notorious detective, stood convicted today of larceny in an amazing swindle based on the tragic kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. He faces a possible 10-year sentence.

It took a jury in District of Columbia Supreme Court only two hours last night to reach a verdict of guilty on two counts. They cover $104,000 obtained by Means from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wealthy and socially prominent Washingtonian, as ransom and expense money in a fantastic scheme by which the former Justice agreed to rescue the ill-fated child.

The maximum sentence which might be imposed on each count is 10 years, plus $2,000 fine. The jury held him not guilty on separate indictments charging embezzlement of the same money.

The defendant was immediately remanded to jail by Justice James M. Proctor, who rejected a defense plea for continuance of the $50,000 bond under which he had been at liberty during the trial.

POLICE UPHELD IN LINDY QUIZ

TRENTON, N. J., June 14—(INS.)—Arrowe hunt of the Lindbergh baby kidnap-murderers lagged today while storm clouds around the New Jersey State Police and other investigators threatened to break as a result of the suicide of Violet Sharpe, maid in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, of Englewood.

The girl, who ended her life rather than face further police questioning in connection with the case, will be buried tomorrow, far from her rural English home.

Authorities defended themselves against growing protests voiced in many quarters by denying any "third degree" methods were used when the young girl was examined at various times.

Mrs. Morrow, with her daughter Constance and her son, Dwight Morrow, Jr., planned to sail for Europe today. It was likely Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh would remain some time at her Englewood mansion.

WASHINGTON, June 14—(AP.)—The $2,000,000,000 relief program offered by Senate Democrats was substituted today for the Garner $2,300,000,000 plan by the Senate Banking Committee.

The committee agreed to report the Garner bill with the provisions of the Senate bill substituted, so that both measures can go to conference.

The action was the first step toward breaking the deadlock between House and Senate on relief legislation.

WOMEN URGED TO SAVE HOME

SEATTLE, June 14.—(AP.)—A challenge to American womanhood to "recapture the home" was before delegates to the General Federation of Women's Clubs today in biennial convention.

A meeting of the nominating committee with Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., vice president, as the unopposed candidate for the presidency, opened today's long program of reports and addresses. Among them was the presidential message of Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Wendell Pifield, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, of Seattle, last night declared that a "pagan trend of ultra individualism" is breaking up the American home. As primary causes he cited motion pictures, cheap amusements, public nurseries and the tendency of wives and mothers to go into industry.

Among reports laid before the delegates today was one giving a description of the work of adult education in "opportunity schools." It was presented by Mrs. E. J. Jones, of Worthington, Minn., chairman of the committee on adult education. A report by Mrs. L. V. Hubbard, of Upper Montclair, N. J., showed 42 state federations have organized radio work, with broadcasts at least once weekly.

ARMS HOLIDAY PLAN OPPOSED

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEROT

GENEVA, June 14.—The carefully laid plans of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Britain, and Premier Edouard Herriot, of France, for an armament holiday met with considerable opposition today.

On behalf of the United States, Ambassador Hugh Gibson demanded immediate measures toward actual disarmament, on the basis of diminishing the number of "effectives" in each arms classification.

Rudolph Nadolny, of Germany, called upon all nations to disarm to the level imposed upon Germany by the Treaty of Versailles.

Motorist Appeals License Suspension

An appeal from a state rule suspending his operator's license for a month was filed in Common Pleas Court by William A. Dorr, of Aspinwall, whose automobile skidded on an icy turn of the Freeport road, near Millvale, February 1, and struck a pole, causing the death of Mrs. John Lane, riding with Dorr and his wife.

A coroner's jury exonerated Dorr, holding the death accidental. Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, because of the accident suspended Dorr's license for a month from June 6. Judge S. J. Snee fixed a hearing for July 14.

HEARST LAUDED FOR AIDING RADIO

Aylesworth Praises Stand Of Publisher; Urges Film Men Readjust Business

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, June 14.—Twice yesterday Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation and National Broadcasting Company, spoke of the help the radio can be to the motion picture industry. At a luncheon given Mr. Aylesworth by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, he paid tribute to William Randolph Hearst for his acceptance of the radio. He said:

"I must admire Mr. Hearst. When he saw the radio coming he recognized it and gave space to it in all his newspapers. I think other publishers might do well to ride with progress in the same way.

"Motion pictures should also co-operate with the radio. The radio can be of great value to the theater owners in exploiting the attractions at the theaters."

ADVISES PRODUCERS

Later in the day Mr. Aylesworth met the newspaper folk and continued his talk. He suggested that one solution for the present empty theater is for producers to face the economic facts.

The motion picture attendance has fallen from 10,000,000 a day in 1928 to 6,000,000 a day for the first few months of 1932. This is due, Mr. Aylesworth said, not to the inferior quality of pictures, but to the fact that more than 7,000,000 wage earners who are unemployed mean at least 25,000,000 devotees of motion pictures who must use every cent they have or can get for the necessities of life.

He was asked:

"What about the hundreds of theaters now standing idle?"

He replied:

"I have no quarrel, now, with the business judgment which dictated the building and purchase of large chains of theaters. In retrospect it is easy enough to criticize anything.

URGES READJUSTMENT

"But the time has come when we must face readjustment. This readjustment would have been necessary had there been no depression. There are too many theaters, too many pictures, too much overhead, and too little co-operation between companies to attain the goal of better products and less waste."

Radio has already begun to economize. Harold B. Franklin, in charge of RKO theaters, has cut down expenses $3,000,000. David Selznick reports that the producing company has reduced its actual expenses $50,000 a week.

Mr. Aylesworth, who is a young man to be at the head of National Broadcasting and to be the president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum enterprises, is optimistic about the future, although he feels drastic steps must be taken to overcome the present economic difficulties.

Triennial Sessions Voted by Federation

SEATTLE, Wash., June 14.—(AP.)—Six things should be saved by women—their houses, their schools, their churches, their children, their government and their spirit of joy. Miss Catherine Oglesby, associate editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, told the delegates at the General Federation of Women's Clubs biennial here yesterday.

"Sane spending" was urged by Dr. Josephine L. Pierce, of Lima, O., as a path to improved economic conditions. Dr. Pierce is chairman of the division of family finance. She said:

"Tell Mary, and John, and Peggy just how much dad makes and outline for them the various family expenses it must cover."

The federation voted to elect officers for three-year terms and hold triennial instead of biennial conventions. Those approving the change included the unopposed candidate for president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass.

FLOWER SHOW MUCH LARGER THIS YEAR

MISS EVELYN CHALFANT MISS ELEANOR CHALFANT MISS JEAN McCLALLEN

An exhibit at the Rockledge Garden Club's second annual flower show, held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Sidney A. Chalfant, near Wilkinsburg on the William Penn Highway. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Rockledge Garden Exhibition Held One of Season's Most Artistic And Extensive Displays

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

No little surprise was occasioned by the increase in both extent and variety of this year's (the second) flower show of the Rockledge Garden Club. Indeed, it was pronounced by the judges, Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Mrs. J. J. Edson, Jr., and Miss Katherine Miller, to be one of the largest and quite the most artistic they have judged this season.

The show was held yesterday in Mrs. Sidney Chalfant's home, William Penn highway, after luncheon across the pike at Mrs. Walter L. Dipple's home.

Between luncheon and the exhibit hour, Mrs. Elsie McFate discussed June garden work. Then last night the husbands of club members dropped in to view the exhibit.

Mrs. Chalfant's entire house was given over to the show, each room having its appropriate unit. On the veranda were the garden and tea arrangements, notable among these being a huge jar holding great branches of the new syringa and ripe cherries. Mrs. R. M. Herr's tea tray was also an especially lovely note here, a plate of fresh mintsprays, ripe cherries and lemon quarters blending with the colored stripes of the glasses and tea bottle.

In the living room Mrs. W. C. Dierks' black bowl of white spirea and the new apricot poppy (a first prize) attracted a great deal of attention. A combination of veronica and maiden pink in a little brass bowl was one of the most artistic exhibits in the dining room where the table was set with amethyst glass and a centerpiece of pyrethrum. Two toy tea sets, one of very old French china on a lacquer tray, each with its own proportionately-sized bouquet, added charm in the bedrooms and den on the second floor were other lovely arrangements.

Prize Poppy

Awards went to Miss Martha Black (for nearly everything she entered), Mrs. Chalfant, Mrs. Dierks, Mrs. J. P. Peers, Mrs. Harry Davis, Mrs. J. Lee Barnes, Mrs. James Carothers, Mrs. George M. Swan, Mrs. S. R. Alman, Mrs. R. M. Ewing, Mrs. W. A. Jordan, Mrs. Alexander P. Lindsay, Mrs. Herr and Mrs. W. B. Chalfant.

MILITARY NOTE IN STREET WEAR ADDS TRIM, YOUTHFUL QUALITY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 14.—Women this year set great store by their street clothes. There is the demand for simple, wearable clothes that draw a smart line between the severely tailored line and the softer line that marks the afternoon mode. Neat suits with dressmaker touches, simple frocks with effective detail and a matching little jacket or capelet, these are the favorites of well-dressed women. Woolens continue to be much employed, jersey weaves being extremely popular. Blue and green are both favorite shades, especially in the darker shades, since they bridge the gap between black and the lighter colors that we are wont to associate with summer.

* * *

THE NEAT, trim effect that characterizes the average frock or suit for town wear owes much to the military note that was first introduced by Worth. Shoulder details, buttons, novel, double-breasted fastenings, all give the effect of a nice, well-tailored military uniform. And that is just what the great army of well-dressed women like. For this effect is indicative of youth, and a youthful effect is the essential quality in clothes designed for general wear in town.

* * *

A SUIT and a frock both ideal for a busy day about town are shown in the accompanying drawing. The suit would be equally good for country wear, too. It uses the new tweed-like woolen in green, mottled with white. Despite the apparent simplicity, much detail is used in both skirt and jacket, and the military note is sounded throughout. The chiffon scarf that gives such a softening touch is in two tones of green. The frock and cape is in navy blue jersey, the guimpe being made of white djersa, which is one of the more popular of the new weaves.

* * *

THE DRESS, in jumper effect, has been cut on the bias and hangs rather straight until it is caught in at the waistline with a belt. The little cape is of the same material, and when tied is adjusted well off the throat, to show the white of the guimpe about the shoulders. The guimpe itself is also of wool—of white djersa.

"Rinso is so economical!" says Mrs. F. E. Blood of Washington, D. C.

"RINSO gets clothes white with little or no work! And it's so economical. This is what I washed with the last big package I used:

2 bedspreads, 3 bureau scarfs, 6 face cloths, 9 napkins, 8 pillow cases, 4 sheets, 2 table-cloths, 6 bath towels, 15 linen towels, 6 dish towels, 50 handkerchiefs, 1 child's nightgown, 5 children's dresses, 7 pairs children's stockings, 3 suits children's underwear, 1 nightshirt, 2 overalls, 3 men's pajamas, 18 shirts, 2 dresses, 1 nightgown, 8 men's underwear, 20 pairs socks

"I also cleaned the woodwork in three rooms, kept the sink and tubs clean for 8 days and did all the dishes for the same period. That's why I'm for Rinso!"

A little Rinso gives a lot of thick suds. Try it. See how much work one BIG box will do for you.

Love—And Other Trifles

There are still lots of girls in the world, if a man would only look for them, who would rather have a poor man's love than a rich man's alimony checks.

* * *

Ingenuity is that talent, which a man displays, when he manages to get his whole summer wardrobe hung up in the space his wife has left him in the hotel clothes-closet.

There is a monument to almost every great maker of destiny in the world's history, except the man who invented the corset over and the genius who first thought of the safety razor.

* * *

When a woman of 40 or 50 marries again, she has to make the doubtful choice between being an old man's nurse and a young man's checking account.

* * *

If lovers were forced by law to leave out all the applesauce, baby talk and wrangling, the silence between them would be thick enough to cut with a knife.

Love should ripen slowly, like fruit. The quick, hothouse variety lacks the sweet, rich flavor of affection that comes when it has "grown" under natural conditions.

* * *

Of course, it's just as easy to love a rich man as a poor one; but it takes a great deal more finesse to MARRY one who has the price of the fare to Paris than one who works in the same office and can't get away.

* * *

The surest way to win in the love game, as in the stock market, is by staying OUT of it.

Club Notes

Varied Program

The familiar black and gold year books of the Wilkinsburg Civic Club have been distributed and announce a varied program for the coming season. A pre-season meeting on September 8 will be a round-table discussion on parliamentary law. The season proper begins October 2, which is president's day, the time when Mrs. E. C. Miller will take over the responsibilities of office from Mrs. Horace Daugherty and will be guest of honor at the reception. Mrs. Margaret Leyda will give the afternoon's program of music.

The November meeting will be devoted to an American home program: Christmas in other lands will be described at the December meeting, then in January will come a reception to new members with a special program by the club choral. "Questions and Answers" is the rather unusual topic assigned under the February Calendar, a program for the blind coming in March; election of officers in April, and a dramatization of the annual reports in May. The program at the election meeting will be a trinity of histories—of Pittsburgh, Wilkinsburg and of the club.

The annual outing, to finish the year, is dated for June 11.

* * *

Closing Season

At the home of the regent, Mrs. J. G. Daub, in Brighton road, Keystone Chapter, Daughters of American Pioneers, will have its annual outing on Saturday. The entertainment and social committees, of which Mrs. Frank Sumney and Mrs. W. T. Larimer are chairmen, will be in charge.

* * *

A picnic in Carrick Park tomorrow will conclude the year's activities for the Mothers' Club. Luncheon will be served in the shelter house under the direction of Mrs. John Robson.

* * *

Mrs. T. T. Miller is taking reservations for the Dormont Juniors' annual bridge luncheon which is to be an event of Saturday at the New Century Clubhouse.

* * *

The P. C. C. W. Bridge Club, Unit No. 2, will entertain at Council House on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Walter D. Brown, chairman, will have as her aides Mrs. L. J. Feinaugle, Mrs. W. B. Gallagher and Mrs. Leon J. Plante.

* * *

Kelton Parent-Teacher Association will have its summer round-up of pre-school children tomorrow from 1 until 5 o'clock in the school.

Plan for Bazar

Plans for the October bazar, the club's most important event of the year, were formulated yesterday by the Edgewood Cot Club preceding its closing bridge luncheon in the Edgewood Country Club.

* * *

Thursday, June 23, has been set as the date for a benefit for the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club. It will be a card and garden party, one of the largest of the season, at the home of Mrs. David I. McCahill, Warwick terrace.

LONDON, June 14.—(AP.)—With the Prince of Wales it's "we farmers." At the county show of the farmers of Leicestershire yesterday he said:

You can Rely on Everything you Buy at Horne's

It is the policy of the Joseph Horne Co. to sell only First Quality Merchandise at all times, regardless of price.

TODAY, as a result of the serious deterioration of quality through the mad competition of manufacturers and merchants for business at any price, reliance has become an important consideration in shopping. People who must spend wisely, who cannot afford to make mistakes, are turning instinctively to those stores whose reputation for quality is unimpaired. It pays to be SURE of what you buy today!

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Wife Have Vacation By Herself Occasionally?

Do you believe in vacations for husbands and wives?

No, not vacations together, but vacations from each other?

Vingie would like to get away from her family for a while and be alone. It's not because she doesn't love them. She does. But she has worked hard. She's weary. And she thinks a few new scenes would pep her up and make her love the family circle more.

And the family, especially dad, are taking it as a personal insult.

"Go away from us?" they ask in injured voices. "Who, what for? How can you?"

Who do you think's right? Is mom a kind of ogress because she'd like to be alone? Or is the family all wet in not understanding?

WANTS TO GET AWAY

"Dear Sally—

"Maybe you'll think I'm crazy when you read this, but I'm going to write it nevertheless. I've got to ask somebody about it.

"It's just this. I would like to take a little vacation, all by myself, and my family thinks—well, they're just simply outraged by this notion of mine.

"Why on earth do you want to go away from us?" asks my husband in a hurt tone. 'Don't we always go somewhere every year? Don't you and I and the youngsters have a good time?'

"And he really means it. He enjoys—different from some men, isn't he?—having us along. He gets a great bang out of us all going camping somewhere together, or to a summer hotel, or off in a jaunt in the car.

"Well, to tell the truth, I do, too. New scenes are stimulating. But don't you think people should get away from each other now and then? Don't you think they really appreciate each other more when they've had a complete, even if short, rest from each other, and sort of got a new slant on things, including themselves?

FAMILY DISAPPROVES

"Maybe I am getting funny, but for 12 years we have always all gone off together to the beach or the mountains or something, and, honestly, sometimes I feel that I am losing my identity, if you get what I mean.

"I feel as if I'd just like to go somewhere all by myself, and be alone, without having to think what would please Dad, or 10-year-old Bobbie, or 8-year-old Mary, or what those two lively youngsters may be getting into if I don't watch after them.

"It would be feasible, too, for me to do it. There is a fine, middle-aged woman who would be glad to take care of the home while I was gone. Or my mother would, if it came to that.

"But every time I mention it the family looks at me so reproachfully that I feel like a brute. I feel as if walls were shutting down around me. Sometimes I get so nervous I could scream, not because I don't love them all, but because I feel so bound.

"I'd like, for just once, to be free for a few days, to consider no one but myself for a change. Is that wicked? When they look at me like that, I feel it is.

WANTS OPINIONS

"I wonder how some of the other husbands and wives feel about this. I wish you would print this, so they can speak up and tell me. I wonder if other women feel the way I do, and what they do about it.

"How do they make their families understand it isn't because they don't love them, but because they'd like to 'be themselves' for a little while?

"VINGIE R."

Should the kids and Dad let you go off by yourself for a spree now and then?

My answer is yes. And I think a lot of other Mammas will agree with me. We all need brand new scenes and people once in a while.

And now, how about you, Stranger? Do you feel hurt if Little Wife wants to herd by herself occasionally? Or do you realize how tired she gets rustling grub, and wondering whether what she does is going to please you and the youngsters?

And you wives? What do you think and do, about vacations?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sunbaths Improve Health and Save Lives

Sunbaths have been popular within the last few years, and this is one fad that is approved and highly recommended by the medical profession, for sunlight aids in promoting health, happiness and strength.

Dr. Copeland

Sunbaths have greatly aided in lowering the number of victims of certain diseases of childhood. In treatment of rickets the value of sunlight cannot be overestimated. Rickets at one time was known as the "disease of tenement children," who suffered from it because they did not have sufficient sun, air or nourishment. It is known that even though the diet might be lacking in Vitamin D, rickets can be prevented if the child receives plenty of sunshine.

For many years tubercular children in Switzerland have benefited by the action of the sun. Unhampered by clothes, they play about in the sunlight in winter as well as in summer. In these days all institutions caring for tubercular children and adults, take advantage of the benefits of sunlight.

Not only for the diseased, but for the healthy individual, the therapeutic value of the sun is now recognized. Many of my readers will recall a time when the direct rays of the sun were believed to be harmful to children. Due to such unfounded notions as "heating the blood" and "heat stroke," the child was kept in the shade and away from the beneficial rays of the sun.

Today, I am glad to say, all authorities agree that infants should be reasonably exposed to the sun's beneficial action, and mothers are taught that sunlight is necessary for the proper growth of babies. It stimulates the growth of a child's bones and prevents infections and constitutional diseases.

The sunbath may be given to the baby when it is but three or four weeks old. In summer the sunbaths should be given outdoors and the exposures to the sun gradually increased until the baby has a protective coat of tan.

Care must always be taken, however, against too much sunlight. When quickly exposed to the sun the skin receives a burn that is similar to a burn from fire or scalding liquids, which is dangerous and may produce serious complications. This is rarely seen in children, but is too frequently encountered in the enthusiastic adult vacationist who wishes to obtain a coat of tan.

Tanning the skin is a protection against the harmful action of sunburn, but it can be accomplished safely only by gradual exposure to the sun. Once you have a good coat of tan, you need not be concerned about how long you stay in the sun, but until then be careful. Many vacations have been ruined by neglect of this rule.

The sun was worshipped by the ancient Egyptians and Greeks as a god who gave them health. They paid homage to the sun, but they knew it could be harmful as well as beneficial. It would be a good plan for vacationists to remember the sun-wisdom of the ancients.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Through applications of castor oil, warts will often do a disappearing act. If the skin appears broken around the edges of the blemish, consult a medical man who specializes in skin diseases.

Gloves that are soiled on the inner surfaces are hard on the hands. The human hide, like a delicate fabric, suffers from contact with dirt. Hands should be protected during those hours when the busy housewife puts her house in order. Rubber gloves will save on the hand lotion bill. Harsh soaps are cruel to little mitts, roughening the cutaneous coating, causing finger nails to dull and dim, breaking the cuticle about the pink shells.

Prominent collar bones disappear, no matter how thin a girl may be, when the applicant for a svelte shape learns to stand properly, to throw the hips backward, to lift the chest cavity, to let the arms fall naturally, to hold the tummy in where it very well belongs.

When a girl applies complexion powder, she gives her nose the first serving, which is usually plenty. Bad technique. The pad should put the dull finish on the collar bones first, travel up over the chin and cheeks, put the fluff on the forehead, attend to the nose last. When dry rouge is used, it should be placed atop powder and then powder placed atop it, forming as it were a cosmetic sandwich.

Contract Bridge

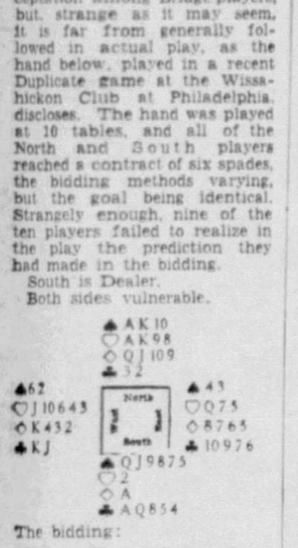
-:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN -:-

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Safety Versus the Finesse.

When there is a safe method of playing a hand that insures the making of your contract, whether that contract is for part-score, game or Slam, it should always be followed in preference to an unsafe method, which may, if successful, possibly net an extra trick. This principle will find universal acceptation among Bridge players, but, strange as it may seem, it is far from generally followed in actual play, as the hand below, played in a recent Duplicate game at the Wissahickon Club at Philadelphia, discloses. The hand was played at 10 tables, and all of the North and South players reached a contract of six spades, the bidding methods varying, but the goal being identical. Strangely enough, nine of the ten players failed to realize in the play the prediction they had made in the bidding.

South is Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. South has a hand which, while containing only 3 honor-tricks, promises to develop many playing-tricks, provided a favorable distribution is found. North's Forcing Takeout, with 4½ honor tricks, is equally obvious, and the fit of the hands in spades clearly indicates the correct eventual declaration. South might, after the Forcing Takeout, bid four clubs rather than three spades, but this bid would not in any sense change the final contract.

The play of the hand was the rock that wrecked nine of the ten Declarers. In every instance a spade was opened, and the nine who failed to complete their contract, after exhausting the adverse trumps, elected to finesse the club suit and thus lost the chance to make the hand.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

One player, Mr. Charles H. Goren, saw a method whereby the club finesse could be entirely avoided. Two rounds of trumps drew the adverse trumps, and then the Ace of diamonds was led from the closed hand. The Dummy was re-entered by leading a heart, and a diamond was then led, upon which South discarded a small club. West won this trick, but the Slam was now safe, as two more clubs could be discarded on the diamonds and one on the King of hearts. This line of play, while affording the maximum of safety, did not even preclude the possibility of making the extra trick so dear to the hearts of Duplicate players.

If East held the diamond King, then seven-odd could perhaps be made, and the finesse for the diamond King was just as logical as the attempt to guess the location of the club King and the hope for a favorable break in the club suit. It was not only just as logical, but it was absolutely safe. Therefore, it presented the correct line of play.

Today's Questions:

South is Dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

What should West lead, holding:

♠ Q J ♡ Q J 10 8 3 2 ◇ 8 ♣ 10 7 6 3

Answer: Eight of Diamonds. The opponents apparently count not more than one loser in their combined hands. That trick must be held by East, since West holds none. West's best play to develop a second trick, therefore, is the surprise attack with the singleton diamond, of which the opponents are not aware.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Best Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have the honor of acting as best man for my friend's wedding. There is to be a reception at the home of the bride, and a theater party later. Is it the duty of the best man to pay for the theater tickets, or is that the groom's responsibility? Or would it be proper to go "Dutch treat?"

BEST MAN TO BE.

If the best man wishes to give this party, he may, but there is no reason in the world why he should be expected to give it. The best man should not have any expenses for the wedding. His position is solely as you put it "having the honor of being best man." The groom, I think, would give this party, but there is no rule about it, for theater parties are not customarily given after weddings, and especially when there is to be a reception.

It would not be proper to go "Dutch treat" for an occasion of this kind. I am sure that the groom will give this party.

The Doorman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When stopping a car before a store entrance and so forth, where there is a doorman who opens doors for others to alight, is it necessary to tip? Also if he takes your car and parks it, is it necessary to tip?

INTERESTED.

Unless the doorman does some special service for you, as parking your car, it is not necessary for you to tip him.

LIQUOR ISSUE AVOIDED IN KEYNOTE

plank calling for resubmission of the prohibition question predicted success was just ahead after consulting the White House and spokesmen for the drys.

During the morning they communicated by telephone with President Hoover's aides in Washington and called in Daniel A. Poling, head of the Allied Forces for Enforcement, and other prohibition leaders, to inspect the tentative resubmission plank already drawn up.

As it emerged in the early morning hours from a conference extraordinary of convention chiefs, the plank favored submission of a new amendment, giving the states the right to decide for themselves and promising federal co-operation with those that want to be dry. It did not recommend whether such an amendment be ratified or rejected.

Subsequent events indicated, however, that revision was in progress.

STUDY ISSUE

Secretaries Mills and Hyde, of the Cabinet, pored over the issue with James R. Garfield, the President's choice to head the resolutions committee. A final agreement and approval by the President was expected before the committee goes to work late today.

Reaching the stadium from the prohibition conference room long after the convention had opened, Secretary Mills said wearily:

"I don't think a real solution will be found until the committee meets."

Nevertheless, the departure of Mills, together with Secretary Stimson, from the prohibition parleys indicated a final draft had been found, subject to study by the President during the early afternoon.

The fact that the cabinet members have taken over the prohibition job was accepted as showing almost certain presidential approval of a tentative resubmission plan, at least.

The word spread around that the opposition of the liberal dry leaders was centered principally upon the proposal to refer the prohibition issue back to state conventions rather than to state legislatures.

This is not regarded as an insurmountable obstacle, and because of that confidence continued in a solution that would swing a majority of the confused convention delegates into line.

The prohibition issue was brought officially to the notice of the assembled representatives of Republicanism, but hardly anyone on floor or in gallery knew it.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler sent his famous repeal resolution to the desk for reference to the platform committee, without asking that it be read. Silently it went into the hopper, to be heard from later.

One point sure to stir committee debate is the problem of the saloon. The compromise conference tried to find a way to propose a legal barrier to it, but failed.

The prohibition dispute so far overshadowed the convention picture that every other phase of the big quadrennial event was all but forgotten as the delegates came together today at the Stadium.

The sudden rise of anti-prohibition sentiment here had been one of the dramatic episodes of political history. The leaders seemed almost as much surprised as if the waters of Lake Michigan had risen into their hotels, and the rank and file was left gasping at the tumble of developments.

FIGHT OVER CURTIS

Second place in the speculation and concern of leaders and delegates was held by the question of the vice presidency. Not only does a murmur of opposition to the renomination of Mr. Curtis run through many delegations, but Gen. Dawes' statement of renunciation in Washington yesterday did not stop efforts by his admirers. Iowa went so far as to indorse him by resolution. Texas indicated it might be for him, and Illinois debated whether it should not press its campaign in his behalf.

The prospects continued to point toward a Curtis renomination when nominations are reached on Thursday, but something at least may depend on the result of the prohibition struggle, which must be settled first. If the administration gets its way on the wet and dry issue, the convention may want to break away on the vice presidency and pick a new candidate.

That everything is not entirely lovely for administration desires in this convention was amply demonstrated yesterday by the delegates from Massachusetts. William M. Butler, of that state, has been under serious discussion here for national chairman. But his own delegation refused on its arrival here to give him even a membership on the national committee.

QUIET ON SURFACE

There was no outward sign of these internal wars, however, on the surface of today's gathering in the mammoth stadium—the same aditorium in which the Democrats are to meet two weeks hence. The program was filled instead, after the manner of opening convention sessions, with formalities and pleasantries, and its tenure was brief.

The first session of the convention was called to order at 12:31 p. m. (Pittsburgh time), by Chairman Fess, of the National Committee.

At 12:26 Senator Fess made his first try for order, bringing down the gavel with a big whack. The delegates began to file out of the aisles and it looked as though the Senator, much to his surprise, might get order without much begging.

"would keep faith with the people on their expression on prohibition given at the primary April 26."

DENIES 'DOUBLE-CROSS'

Martin denied there had been any double-crossing and said he had sent word to Allegheny Countians that prohibition would be considered this morning. Allegheny Countians said they had not received the notice and were relying on last night's announcement that the matter would not come up until this afternoon.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley is planning to attend the Allegheny caucus this afternoon and attempt to dissuade the delegates from any revolt against the plank approved this morning, which has the approval of the administration.

James M. Hazelett, Philadelphia, Republican city chairman and William S. Vare's representative in Chicago, said that the action of this morning's caucus was final as far as he is concerned and that his entire delegation of 14 would stand by the adopted resolution.

Some Philadelphia delegates resented orders to abandon repeal and called Hazelett's attention to the difference between his attitude today and last night when he said Philadelphia was solid for repeal and modification.

Mackrell, in conference with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, assured the Columbia president that he would get some repeal votes from Allegheny County in a vote on the floor.

Butler said he had sufficient pledges to bring repeal to the floor if it is not in the platform.

On the floor of the convention, the Allegheny County members sat in an angry knot, from time to time conferring with other delegates who have been insistent upon repeal.

The Allegheny countains will mained away from this morning's caucus because of a statement yesterday by Martin and State Senator John J. McClure, chairman of a special committee named to report recommendations on prohibition, that nothing would be done by the delegation until this afternoon two hours after the convention adjourns.

The Allegheny Countains will meet at that time this afternoon in a caucus of their own, which will be open to any other Pennsylvania delegates who can be attracted. A direct effort will be made to rescind the action of this morning's caucus.

EIGHT FOR REPEAL

Eight of the 10 Allegheny countians are insistent upon an expression for repeal and modification, and it may be that the two dry members, Charles P. Howe and C. L. Kelly, will lend their aid to a reconsideration in the spirit of fair play, feeling as Mackrell does that there was sharp practices this morning on the part of Martin and other state committee leaders.

Martin, when he addressed the caucus this morning, said that action should be taken as the national resolutions committee was to meet this afternoon and should have before it the attitude of Pennsylvania.

Four resolutions immediately appeared, none of which agreed to the demands of Allegheny County or the insistence by William S. Vare that the platform should be wringing wet. One was for plain resubmission, a second suggested another constitutional amendment but contained no sentiment as to whether it should be stronger or weaker than the present law, a third called for modification of the Volstead Act, and the fourth, a product of the drys, called for no action at all. The first three resolutions were adopted and the fourth was tabled.

The resubmission resolutions reads:

"Resolved, That we favor prompt resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment by Congress to state conventions called to deal with that problem in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution, as we believe this to be the most expeditious and exact method of ascertaining the will of the people on this subject."

Dickinson's Keynote Speech to Convention

CHICAGO, June 14 — (AP.) — A portion of the text of Senator L. J. Dickinson's keynote speech before the Republican national convention follows:

"Perhaps it was with prophetic vision that the American people elected Herbert Hoover four years ago with the greatest popular and electoral college vote any president ever received. At any rate, he had scarcely taken the oath of his office before economic storm clouds had begun to cast their sinister shadow over the nations of the world.

"His first act prevented a financial panic. Invoking the powers of the Federal Reserve Board, he prevented this catastrophe. Thus he cushioned the effects of the debacle in Wall street, which followed the greatest period of stock speculation the world had ever known.

With the knowledge that every major economic convulsion in the past had been attended by strikes, riots, bloodshed and death, President Hoover's next concern was to maintain social order.

Unemployment Relief

"To this end he summoned to the White House industrial leaders of the nation and obtained from them a promise to maintain existing wage scales as long as it was possible to do so.

"On the same day leaders of organized labor, sitting around the same conference table, gave their pledge that there would be no industrial wage disturbances.

"Had Herbert Hoover accomplished no more in this depression, he would have done more than all of the other presidents had done in the 14 major economic dislocations which have gone before.

"But our President planned a campaign to deal with the unprecedented situation in which the world found itself in the back-wash of the greatest of wars.

"With financial panic averted; with industrial peace assured, the Chief Executive moved rapidly to mitigate unemployment distress.

"However, no action of government or of people could stay the march of the insidious enemy within our gates. Unemployment and suffering were inevitable. To relieve this to the fullest possible measure, the President set up in Washington a national unemployment committee to co-operate with the states both in finding employment and in relieving the needy.

There was a generous response from every state and with the co-operation of the people the President was able to resist rising clamors for a federal dole.

Maintained Order

"Contrast this picture of a stable social order, the people united in aid to their less fortunate fellows, with the chaos in many countries abroad. There revolution followed revolution. Government after government fell. Battle and bloodshed became an almost every day occurence.

"This was the foreign situation only a year ago. Drastic action was necessary if the international financial structure was to be preserved. Herbert Hoover took that action. He proposed and the other powers quickly agreed to a one year's moratorium on reparations and war debts. Germany was saved from financial chaos that would have involved the entire world.

"With this catastrophe averted, the President continued to wage the battle against depression on a hundred fronts in the United States.

"Before Congress assembled last December, President Hoover prepared for it the most far-reaching rehabilitation and reconstruction program that has ever been designed by any leader in any country under any circumstance.

"Foremost in this plan was the creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with reserves of two and a half billions of dollars to furnish necessary credit otherwise unattainable.

"As Herbert Hoover poured out his tremendous energies and abilities upon the altar of public service and the welfare of all of the people, what of the Democratic opposition?

"For two long years they hampered the President at every turn; to belittle his every effort at human and economic relief to impugn his every motive; to frustrate his every move. Their orders were to 'smear Hoover.'

"Upon his shoulders the anvil chorus of Democracy placed the responsibility for every ill at home and abroad.

"As might have been expected, they overplayed their hand. With the nation threatened by its greatest economic crisis, people demanded that partisan politics be submerged in the general welfare. Having no program of their own, they naturally and wisely followed the President who alone had a workable program.

Democrats Accused

"But after they had assisted in partially translating this plan into law, our Democratic friends were no longer able to contain their hopes of victory within the sphere of the good of the nation. On the all essential proposition of balancing the budget, they elected to follow their own course. And with what result?

"The Decomrats in the House of Representatives flouted their own leadership; their tax bill was completely rewritten by the revolting Democratic majority; their economy measure was torn to shreds.

"Democratic sponsors call for undue inflation of the national currency. The safety of the country requires the maintenance of the gold standard. The value of the American dollar must be maintained throughout the world.

"Nor was this moribund issue the sum total of the products of the master-minds of democracy. They proposed billions in bond issues for unnecessary and unproductive public works, presumably on the theory that when your budget is unbalanced—when your outgo exceeds your income—you can squander yourself into prosperity.

Directly and indirectly, the federal government has, during the last three years, poured into the agricultural industry nearly $1,000,000,000. Grievous as his suffering may be, no farmer can deny the undevasting friendship of the Republican party.

Tax Bill Revolt

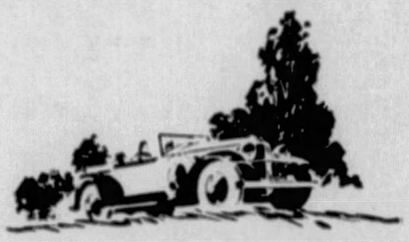
"Since the beginning of the economic crisis, the Democratic party has shown an utter lack of cohesion on every important issue, and on none has it been more divided than on the tariff. Its leaders have run the scale from free trade to the highest possible protection.

"With falling prices and depreciated currencies overseas, there stands just one bulwark for the salvation of our people. Without the rates of the Hawley-Smoot act of 1930, we would long since have been inundated by a flood of cheaply produced foreign products.

"In congressional consideration of the budget balancing tax bill we have had further illustrations of the avidity with which the Democrats pursue high tariff rates. They generously supported duties on copper, coal, oil and lumber, and all this after two years of the most bitter and venomous denunciation of the Hawley-Smoot act.

"Today partisianship is sublimated before patriotism.

"And yet to my mind there is no greater patriotism than the employment of every effort toward the restoration of normal conditions. And there can be no more dependable means to this end than the re-election of Herbert Hoover as President of the United States."



A Timely Suggestion to the MOTORING PUBLIC

FOR the past six years, tires have been steadily dropping in price at periodic intervals.

No one familiar with general economic conditions and production costs could consistently recommend buying tires in advance of current needs as being desirable.

But now we have reached the point where crude rubber has declined from $1.20 a pound in 1925 —an artificially high price—to less than 3c a pound, which is far less than it costs to produce.

Cotton, too, has dropped from more than 20c a pound to around 5c a pound, which also is less than its cost of production.

These—rubber and cotton—are the two main materials entering into the construction of pneumatic tires.

A STEADY reduction in tire prices has been brought about almost entirely by the drastic decline in price of these two basic raw materials.

So in buying your tires now you get the benefit of these two items at less than cost of production, and the benefit also of price reductions made to give every possible inducement to stimulate buying for the purpose of keeping labor in the tire factories employed.

It must be evident, therefore, that tire prices have reached bottom and that you can wisely and profitably replace such tires as are worn to a point where they will soon become unsafe, and that also you can anticipate your future requirements to some extent and know you are making a good investment.

With the need of promoting employment wherever possible, and the imminence of a substantial revenue tax on tires, I believe that you will be benefiting yourselves and the country at large by making your tire purchases now.

Today your children are eating for tomorrow. They are laying the foundation for sturdy, rugged health in the years to come. They must have plenty of lime, iron, vitamins and roughage.

"ZO," the great vitamin cereal, is so delicious that children gladly eat all you serve them and ask for more. It is super-rich in the elements little folks need. Food iron for rosy cheeks. Food lime to build good white teeth and straight sturdy bones. And the actual wheat germ super-rich in Vitamins B and G to protect health. Thus, it supplies necessary elements lacking in the average diet. At the famous Battle Creek Sanitarium and in thousands of homes, "ZO" has been used for years.

Try a package for breakfast tomorrow! Note the delicious flavor . . . and remember, adults as well as children benefit from its invigorating goodness. Simply ask your grocer for "ZO." Only 15c

Clothing Workers' Leaders Urge Five-Billion Loan To End Depression Crisis

Recognizing the inability of localized efforts to bring about a stabilization of business conditions, the Pittsburgh local, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, today was on record demanding Congress take heed to the pleas of civic trade and industrial groups to provide a national building program of necessary public works through passage of the proposed $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan.

In a memorial being sent to Pennsylvania senators and the congressmen from this district, it was pointed out that the curtailed buying power of millions of unemployed workers throughout the nation has affected the clothing industry as well as others, and thereby had added many of its members to the ranks of those dependent upon charity.

The memorial was being forwarded by President M. Rosen and Secretary H. Friedman.

POLITICS
Democratic Leaders in Trek to Chicago
By MARK SHIELDS

CHICAGO, Ill., June 14.—This hominally is Republican week in Chicago, but a liberal sprinkling of Democrats can be found about the hotel lobbies, already preparing for the really big show of this double-barreled convention circus.

Mr. Shields

The Democrats have a controversy over candidates as well as platform, and representatives of the various patriots willing to serve their country in the White House are already on the ground, every delegate vote being important. James M. Farley, Democratic state chairman of New York, and national leader of the Franklin D. Roosevelt forces, has been very busy in conference with Illinois chiefs.

The Roosevelt strategy is to dangle support for the vice presidency before prominent men whom they hope in return will assist in getting the New York Governor some delegate votes. The activity of the Roosevelt forces indicates they are still far from certain of success, though they speak with the greatest degree of optimism.

Their strategy is clearly illustrated in a story set aflow here booming Melvin Traylor for the vice presidency, with Roosevelt heading the ticket. It came from Roosevelt sources and has a two-pronged thrust.

* * *

Traylor Regarded As 'Dark Horse'

Traylor, though resident in Illinois, is classed as a Texan, and has been spoken of as a possible alternative for first place should the convention become deadlocked. By putting his name forward, the Rooseveltians hope to attract both Texas and Illinois votes to their leader in return for aiding Traylor. So far as Texas is concerned, the strategy is a failure, a lone Texan on the ground declaring that his state will stick to Speaker John Garner to the finish.

In Illinois, however, the picture is slightly different. The up-state or Chicago contingent, following Mayor Anton Cermak, is for Senator James Hamilton Lewis as a gesture of courtesy, but actually loyal to any candidate picked by Al Smith. Down state, it is reported, there is a disposition to give Roosevelt some assistance on later ballots, but this intention will explode if some other entry reaches a position to furnish a real threat. The movement toward Traylor for vice president follows a similar overture to George White, of Ohio. White was unable to accept. There has been considerable speculation as to who white's real second choice is, after he himself is eliminated, as he will be, despite initial support from Ohio.

It is violating no confidence to say that White is and has been quietly for Roosevelt, because through that nomination he has a chance to be put forward as a vice presidential candidate. Ohio Democrats say frankly that could White control the delegation from his state he would swing them to Roosevelt on an early ballot in return for a second place indorsement. But White's hands are tied through an agreement in the Ohio delegation to go to James M. Cox or Newton D. Baker when White is washed up.

That is a bad break for the Ohio governor, who as a vice presidential choice could count on some aid from Pennsylvania, he being a native of Titusville and at one time a resident of Pittsburgh.

* * *

Guffey Swings White Toward Roosevelt

White and Joseph E. Guffey were in college together, and have been long time friends. Another factor in inclining the Ohio Governor to Roosevelt, whom Guffey has been backing.

So far as the Republicans are concerned they will, of course, renominate Mr. Hoover. Few are enthusiastic about the prospect, but they lack the courage to express themselves in the same frank manner as does President Samuel Harden Church, of Carnegie Institute. Church, whose succinct statement yesterday, "that if "the President repudiates prohibition repeal, then we should repudiate the President," aroused much comment—and considerable perturbation among administration follows in Pennsylvania—is unreserved in his condemnation of Mr. Hoover's attitude on the monetary question. Indeed, he can see little to recommend the President.

Actually, that is the attitude of most of the old-line Republicans, but they soft-petal their real convictions in the hope that they can ride through to victory in their state fights, even if they lose the national struggle. One Pennsylvanian, closely identified with the state organization, said today:

"Mr. Hoover isn't our President. We have never gotten a thing from him. But we have to hold our lines together for state fights and take him whether we want him or not."

The action of the President and Senator David A. Reed in continuing to punish Congressman Louis McFadden in the Fifteenth District is not being relished. And the reason is that state organization people friendly toward the gubernatorial ambitions of State chairman Edward Martin fear that out of the incident will come a determination by McFadden to be a candidate for Governor in succession to Mr. Pinchot, whose wife he has just defeated for Congress.

OFFICIALS FROM SEVEN STATES INVITED

Problems to Be Faced Next Fall Topic for First Conference of Series

In a one-day conference in Pittsburgh next Monday, business and community leaders from seven central and eastern states will meet to discuss the problems to be faced next fall by community welfare organizations which depend on voluntary contributions for support of their activities.

The Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, sponsoring the conference, announced that this is the first of a series of five similar conferences throughout the entire country, which will culminate in a final meeting of national leaders in Washington in the fall to launch the period for community campaigns.

NATIONAL MOVEMENT

The whole movement is being developed under the National Association of Community Chests, and has for its purpose the building of a national impetus for local campaigns similar to that given by President Hoover's committee under Walter S. Gifford last fall.

The committee in charge of the Pittsburgh conference consists of H. J. Heinz, chairman; William B. Schiller, and R. Templeton Smith, president of the Welfare Fund. Invitations already have gone out to several hundred business and community leaders of Washington, D. C., and the leading cities of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Western New York, and Eastern Michigan.

Pittsburgh citizens invited to attend the conference include members of the board of directors, the budget committee, and the finance committee of the Welfare Fund, and members of the operating committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Meetings will be held in the cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel through the courtesy of the hotel management. The program includes an opening statement by Allen T. Burns, of the Association of Community Chests and Councils, and discussion of the following questions:

10:30 a. m.—"Where Shall We Secure Sufficient Funds for Relief?"—Benjamin E. Shove, Syracuse, N. Y.

11:30 a. m.—"Can We Ask for as Much Money as We Raised Last Year?"—Judge W. S. McLean, Wilkes-Barre.

2:00 p. m.—"How Can We Continue to Support All Present Community Activities?"—Fred M Butzel, Detroit, Mich.

3:00 p. m.—"What Can We Tell Our Public This Year?"—Ernest H. Pavior, Rochester, N. Y.

4:00 p. m.—"What Should We Expect from Corporations?"—Judge A. V. Cannon, Cleveland, O.

The final meeting of the conference in the evening will be addressed by Fred W. Ramsey, of Cleveland, on "The Citizen's Responsibility for Community Welfare." According to welfare leaders here, the conference marks the first step toward plans for next winter, which threatens more serious problems than those faced last winter.

GROCER ROUTS TWO BANDITS ON HILL

Webster Avenue Man Chases Thugs With Shots After Store Battle Over Pistol

Two young bandits, wearing disguising sun glasses, attempted to hold up Ben H. Greenberg in his grocery store at 2404 Webster avenue today but were chased by the merchant.

Greenberg wrestled with one for the bandit's gun, frightened the pair out of the store, then chased them to Wylie avenue, firing three shots from his own revolver. But they escaped.

Greenberg and his father, Sam, were in the store when the two entered. One barked:

"Stick 'em up!"

Greenberg grabbed at the revolver. In the scuffle his finger was cut. As the bandits fled, Greenberg jumped into his auto and followed. The shots attracted Patrolman William Dorsey, who joined the chase.

Greenberg said the two escaped by entering the front door of a Wylie avenue and store and leaving through the rear.

DR. BAKER SEES BETTER TIMES IN FUTURE

Shorter Hours, Adequate Pay Predicted by School Head; Scores Public Officials

Five hundred and fifty-five graduates of Carnegie Institute of Technology who received their degrees today at commencement exercises in Syria Mosque heard Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the institute, criticize public servants and predict shorter working hours at adequate wages.

Dr. Baker warned the graduates they were entering the world of commerce at a time when there are more unemployed workers than at any other period in history. He added:

"Government, civilization itself, is in danger of collapse because some of the servants of the public have failed to foresee the storms with which we are surrounded. Faith in the men who should guide our thinking is at low ebb."

Dr. Baker said that he believed the current unemployment would not continue in "its present intensity."

MAYVIEW FIRE SYSTEM URGED

An immediate survey of fire hazards at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview with a view to installing a modern fire-detecting system was recommended today by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith.

Following Council's annual inspection at the city institution Smith declared that in the event of a serious fire hundreds of lives might be lost. Some of the buildings, erected many years ago, are menaces to safety Smith said.

At the fire chief's suggestion apparatus made by the Garrison Fire-Detecting System, Inc., was shown to Council last week. He suggested Garrison representatives take part in a survey of Mayview conditions.

Carnegie Boy Cut For Making Noise

Robert Joyce, 12, of 201 West Main street, Carnegie, was confined to his home today with a laceration of the left leg inflicted with a knife by a youth who became angered by the noisy playing of Joyce and his companions in Barrett way, Carnegie, last night, it was said.

WHARF PROJECT GETS BACKING

Approval "in principle" of the Snodgrass-Brown wharf and river front improvement plan was given today by the Better Traffic Committee in a special report to City Council.

The proposed improvement calls for beautification of the wharf along Duquesne way, between Stanwix and Ninth street.

The committee left the engineering details to the City Planning Commission, which will report to Council within the next few weeks.

Tennis Courts Held In Poor Condition

The City Bureau of Parks today was asked by Harry J. Milton, of 3379 Parkview avenue, to investigate the condition of municipal tennis courts.

Milton charged the courts were a disgrace to the city, with nets and fences full of holes. He said attendants loaf more than they work.

Supt. James Moore promised an investigation.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CHICAGO, Ill., June 14.

To the Editor of Sun-Telegraph:

The convention (so the advance literature said), opens today, and today the House of Representatives votes on the soldiers' bonus. Only way they can make this meeting worth while is to put in a radio loud speaker and let us get the speeches from Washington on the bonus. Then they can pack convention hall here.

Will Rogers

Being at this show listening to a "keynote" speech, while those in Washington are going on, is like listening to a Chautauqua lecture when you could have gone to the Ziegfeld Follies.

The wet lobbyists have taken the whole convention. They give you a badge and a drink. Lot of us don't know what to do with all the badges.

Charley Dawes is the most popular man in town. He still has a bank that's open.

All you can hear is "when do the Democrats come?" Chicago is trying to sub-let this convention to Cicero, Ill. Yours,

WILL.

EASTERN STAR TO ELECT

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 14.—A number of spirited contests for elective offices of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, Order of the Eastern Star, were forecast today as the thirty-eighth annual session officially opened. More than 3,000 women, including 1,500 delegates, crowded Hotel Conneaut and cottages in the park.

The session, which opened last night with a concert in the Temple of Music by the Zem Zem chanters, Erie, will close Thursday with the election of officers. While the proceedure of the order will promote Mrs. Louise C. Lindeman, Pittsburgh, now associate grand matron, to the post of grand worthy matron to succeed Mrs. Cora M. Davenport, West Pittston, there are a number of fights for elective officers. One of the most important of these is for the post of grand secretary, now held by Mrs. Margaret B. Alexander, of Philadelphia.

The first formal meeting of the convention was held last night in the Temple of Music, with Mrs. Stasia A. Moore, Fleetwood, general chairman of the convention committee, presiding. Addresses of welcome were made by Dr. William H. Crawford, president emeritus of Allegheny College, and R. J. MacDonald, Mrs. Davenport responded. Richard A. Boyd, Philadelphia, grand sentinel, delivered a tribute to the flag.

A Councilmanic declaration as to its policy in regards to supplying water for thrift gardens of the unemployed was asked today by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang.

Lang said he had received scores of requests for free water, but lacked official instructions. He suggested a Councilmanic appropriation of $500 to the Bureau of Water.

CHAMPION OF TYPISTS HERE

Speed Writer Gives Exhibition of Methods

George L. Hossfield, 33, of Rutherford, N. J., eight times world champion typist, was in Pittsburgh today, demonstrating the remarkable dexterity of his fast moving digits.

Four times daily this week he will illustrate the five points necessary for the maximum of speed and accuracy, concentration, rhythm, correct posture, keeping eyes on the copy and eliminating unnecessary or lost motion. His demonstrations are part of a business show of the Underwood, Elliott, Fisher Company, who are opening offices in the new Gulf Building.

His record is 135 net five-stroke words a minute for one hour. Using a memorized speed sentence, he can attain 260 words a minute. He is an expert in the rapid changing of paper in the machine. Four-fifths of a second from the time he writes a last word on one paper, another is inserted in the machine. He can write from 135 to 140 words a minute from strange copy, while a spectator gives him a spelling test on the side.

Death in River Claims Second Boy of Family

William Barry, 14, of 41 Tunnel street, a student in Epiphany School, was drowned while bathing in the Monongahela River near Lock No. 1, as three companions looked on, late yesterday.

William, known to his pals as "Red," was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. David Barry to meet death in the waters of the Monongahela. In July, 1930, his younger brother, James, drowned when a raft capsized at the foot of Wood street.

William and two other children also on the raft fell into the stream and were rescued by deckhands of a boat.

William, in view of three pals, disrobed yesterday and dived from a high rock into the water. Although able to swim, he did not appear on the surface again.

17 HURT WHEN TRUCK UPSETS ON BOULEVARD

Mushball Team Members and Friends Injured; House Damaged by Runaway Auto

Eight of the 17 Negroes injured when the truck in which they were riding overturned on the Ohio River boulevard near Superior avenue, were in hospitals today. The victims, members and supporters of the Jones A. C., a mushball team of McKees Rocks, were en route to a game at Exposition Park when the accident occurred. All live in McKees Rocks.

Those in St. John's Hospital were John Ramsey, 38, of 122 Chartiers avenue; Anderson Graham, 17, of 111 Plummer way; Lewis Jones, 19, of 34 Lockhart street; Edgar Baume, 16, of 116 Bell avenue; M. J. Matthews, 20, of 18 Lockhart street, and Kenneth Clark, 31, of 2 Lockhart street. Lee Star, 26, of 208 Bell avenue, and Thomas Collins, of Lockhart street, were in Presbyterian Hospital.

A vacant two-story frame house at 172 Brooks street, was damaged when a driverless automobile, plunging over a 50-foot embankment, crashed into it last night.

The car plunged from Nobles lane while Howard Heyl, 18, of 972 Warrington avenue, was cranking it, police said. Heyl was arrested on a charge of violating the automobile laws. Police said the machine bore no license plates.

The dwelling is owned by Frank Werling, of Ormsby street, Mt. Oliver.

PAY ORDERED FOR 2 OUSTED BY DUNLAP

Legal Department Decrees Reinstated Pair to Get Salaries from January 4

The final chapter in the feud between City Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap and two employes ousted and reinstated by a court order was believed written today when the Law Department ordered both paid for services rendered.

Bert M. Doty and Mathilda M. Ganley were ousted by Dunlap January 4, after their positions were eliminated by Council.

Doty was ordered paid $1,033.33 as salary from that date until June 5, and Miss Ganley $570.91.

Doty and Miss Ganley appealed to the courts on grounds that their civil service ratings were ignored and temporary employes retained. In an opinion Judge Frank Patterson ruled the Supplies Department erred and the pair was ordered back to work with salaries to be paid for time off.

Each reported for duty daily at the City-County Building while the case was pending.

GUILTY OF PLOT TO DEFRAUD LOAN BODY

Ex-Secretary Pleads, Then Testifies Against Man He Claims Forced His Crime

Howard Wandless, 606 Center avenue, Avalon, former secretary of the Modern Building and Loan Association, Fourth avenue, pleaded guilty in Criminal Court, before Judge Elder W. Marshall, to conspiracy to defraud and conspiracy to embezzle more than $1,500 from the loan association.

He then went before the county grand jury and gave testimony against Charles Donkin, of New York, who almost at once was indicted for blackmail and extortion, conspiracy to defraud, and accessory to embezzlement.

State Bank Examiner George P. Taylor, Jr., was the prosecutor.

Sentence was deferred in Wandless' case until he is used as a state witness against Donkin. It is said Wandless claims Donkin, by threat and blackmail, forced him to loot the building and loan association during a period extending from 1926 to 1931.

Free Man of Fraud In Farm Mule Sale

A Criminal Court jury has decided that Harry Long, of near Turtle Creek, didn't commit fraudulent conversion of the price of a mule, $25, and set him free when he was tried on the charge.

Long is a tenant on a farm belonging to Louise Knerr, and the mule was part of the farm equipment. He said she wanted to sell it and he found a buyer who paid $15 down and $10 later. Long said he turned the money over to his landlord, but the latter denied this at the trial.

Story of Black Eye Wins Wife Divorce

L. Richard Gould, 4923 Second avenue, owner of a transfer business, told his wife, Alice K. Gould, 36, of Ormond street, he had been out with his former wife when he returned home late one night, she testified in Common Pleas Court, where she was granted a divorce. On that occasion Gould knocked her against a door and gave her a black eye, she said. They were married in February, 1924, and parted April 15, 1929.

"Let sleeping dogs lie"

Why should smokers accept this old-fashioned notion of the cigarette trade?

BY this time you must be pretty well convinced of the fact that other cigarettes do not like to talk about inhaling.

And yet—this subject—so "untouchable" in cigarette advertising—is very close to your welfare! For you do inhale—we all do—knowingly or unknowingly, every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

"Let sleeping dogs lie" may be the cigarette trade's answer to us! But what's their answer to you? Do you inhale? Lucky Strike does not avoid this vital question. It meets the issue fairly and squarely—because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Lucky Strike's famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

SALES PERSON OF NEW TYPE DEVELOPED

Tomorrow's Clerks Will Be Able to Advise Customers, Speakers Tell Retail Men

Staffs trained in expert knowledge of style, types and quality today are being placed behind the retail counters as stores endeavor to provide greater service to their consumers, it was pointed out before the convention sessions here of the National Retail Dry Goods Association meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

CHANGES STRESSED

The importance of the present-day changes in selling personnel was stressed by representatives of the Research Bureau of Retail Training, University of Pittsburgh. Necessity for guarding the employe's morale was emphasized by Miss Natalie Kneeland, bureau executive secretary.

Citing three eras in sales efforts through the use of living models, Miss Louise Bernard and Miss Grace D. Ely explained the new trend in sales work.

MUST KNOW STYLES

Tomorrow's sales woman, Miss Ely declared, must know what style to advise for the customer's best appearance and realize the difference in qualities which result in varied prices. This sales person already has made her appearance, she said.

Importance of news value in store advertisements was pointed out before a joint session today of the store managers and personnel group. Explaining the needs of fresh merchandise, modern surroundings and individual care by the sales person rather than divided attention, F. A. Weston, advertising director of the Sun-Telegraph, declared:

"The customer looks in your advertisement for news—news that will help her with the multitude of new living problems which a steadily decreasing budget has faced her with. New devices that help out the cost of electric lights and gas bills; new ways to preserve foods, to save time and energy. She can't afford a new living room chair, but a new cushion will dress up the old one. She reads your advertisements for help."

Directors of the store management group meet tonight to elect group officers.

Nine new directors, named by mail ballot, were announced as: L. S. Bitner, of Boston; J. A. Buete, Washington; A. P. Cabell, Akron; A. S. Donaldson, New York; H. W. Garton, New York; C. G. Hobart, Chicago; Mark Lansburgh, Washington; James S. Schoff, Newark, and W. W. Taylor, San Francisco.

KEYHOLE SCENE WINS DIVORCE FOR WIFE

Bellevue Couple Separated After North Side Gasoline Station Peeper Tells Story

Carl F. Hespenheide, of Florence avenue, Bellevue, owner of a North Side gasoline station, was charged with being too attentive to an 18-year-old girl employe by testimony of Gertrude G. Hespenheide, 1414 Jancey street, who obtained a divorce from Judge S. J. Snee in Common Pleas Court. She charged infidelity.

An employe at the filling station testified to incidents seen through the keyhole of Hespenheide's office. Other witnesses told of trips by Hespenheide with the girl to his summer cottage at Sugar Lake, Crawford County. Mrs. Hespenheide said her husband refused to take her on trips to the lake.

They were married in August, 1928, and lived at 42 Florence avenue, Bellevue. Hespenheide has three sons by a former marriage.

Divorces were granted Charles W. Taylor from Estelle V. Taylor, Helen Land from Wilburt Land, Aline Y. Needer from Charles A. Needer, Bessie F. Herbert from Alfred J. Herbert, Alice K. Gould from L. Richard Gould.

Divorce suits were filed by Leroy G. Wilhelm against Bessie Wilhelm, George L. Eaton against Mabel E. Eaton, Helen E. Meyers against Edward G. Meyers.

Raid Turner Hall Near Warehouse

Prohibition agents raided Turner Hall, Allen avenue and Manton way, within the shadow of the government warehouse, in which the agents store contraband, and confiscated 389 pints of beer and two pints of whisky, late yesterday, the raiders reported. Fram Reisinger was arrested.

In the rear of 1409 Reedsdale street, the agents reported seizing a truck laden with three barrels and two half-barrels of high test beer. The owner was being sought today.

SEEK ROAD PACT WITH STATE

The County Commissioners were in Harrisburg today conferring with state highway authorities in an effort to get better co-operation between the state and Allegheny County in road improvements.

The county pays all property damages on roads the state improves within the county, and it is reported that in numerous cases plans for the work have not been filed with county engineers before work was started by the contractor for the state. High damages have been collected because the county has not been given time to gather sufficient data to protect the taxpayers, it is claimed.

The party which motored to Harrisburg last night included Commissioners Charles C. McGovern, C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield; County Solicitor J. P. Fife, P. J. Chester and E. L. Schmidt of the county highways department, and Nevin Woodside and Arch Powell of the Controller's office.

JOBLESS WILL ATTEND SCHOOL

Summer school courses for the unemployed, to begin June 27, were announced by the Board of Public Education today. The term, to continue six weeks, will include a score of courses.

Classes for men will be held in the Clifford B. Connelley Trade School, Bedford avenue and Fullerton street, and those for women in the Bellefield Girls' Trade School, Fifth avenue and Boquet street. More than 1,500 applications for the classes already have been received, officials said.

WHARF PARKING SITES UPHELD

Real estate operators who tear down office buildings and convert the sites into parking lots were denounced today as persons who are hurting business by Charles F. Lyon, of the Bessemer Building, in a communication to City Council.

His protest was an answer to the plan suggested last week by garage owners that the city abandon wharf parking sites, because they interfered with "legitimate enterprises."

Declaring most motorists desire the municipal parking sites along the river fronts, Lyon said:

"It would be a shame to raise the price to park on the wharves or eliminate them entirely."

Council took his protest under advisement.

BITS OF LIFE

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

WITH THE possible exception of Congressmen and Broadway columnists, everybody is supposed to have an aim in life. One bird wants to be a fireman; another would like very much to become an attorney. Your average college student wants nothing more than to be a dramatic critic, and plenty of dramatic critics would like some day to become good students. It all depends on the individual.

Jim Jackson—to tag him with the first phoney name that comes to mind—also had an aim in life. Slightly different from the rest, his ambition was not to become an actor, a policeman, a mayor or an expert sausage manufacturer. All he asked was to be known as a hero.

That's right—a hero. As far back as he could remember, he had always had a yen to be pointed out by his associates as a great guy. He wanted to do something big, so that the newspapers would tell about him in headlines and people would hail him as he passed. I imagine that, as kids, all of us harbor the same desire. When we grow older and realize how empty fame is, however, we outgrow the yen.

Not so with Jim Jackson. As he grew into manhood, the desire became stronger and stronger. He went to bed at nights and dreamed of the day that he would be hailed as a hero for some reason or other. He hung around the bridle paths in Central Park in order to stop a possible runaway horse.

But he seemed to be most unlucky. When he was in the vicinity, the horses were as quiet as though they were racing for my money.

When the war broke out, Jim pounced upon his first, glorious opportunity. He was among the very first to enlist, and he saw service in France in short order.

But his idea of luck was still against him. When the armistice was signed, he was still unsung and unknown.

He tried to find the proper groove in life; some position that might enable him to earn a living and still afford him the opportunity he craved. He became, in turn, a private detective, a payroll guard and a chauffeur for an armored money wagon. But all with the same result. Nothing ever happened.

With nothing else popping up in the line of excitement, Jim decided upon the most hazardous game of all. Just to prove to himself that he didn't care what happened, he went in for a remarkable piece of heroism. You may not care for the man nor his story, but you'll have to admit his gameness in this instance. He got married.

After a few months of matrimonial bliss, Jim reluctantly admitted to himself that his days of searching for adventure were now things of the past. A child was expected, and his wife had turned out to be a grand little woman.

After looking around for awhile, he found a very acceptable position as a private chauffeur. It didn't pay any millions, but it did assure him of a comfortable living. And as Jim swung into the routine, he found himself fairly well satisfied. He talked about it to his wife one night.

"You know, honey," he told her, "it certainly is a good thing I went wild about you. It's a hundred-to-one that something would have happened to me in the long run.

"Remember me telling you when we first met how I'd like to be somebody big and important? Sure you do. Well, I still feel the same way.

"But, with it all, I got a different kind of feeling now. I'm so daffy about you that I wouldn't change places with the biggest hero that ever lived. All that big yen for adventure has disappeared.

"Maybe, even though I'm not looking for it any more, I'll still get my chance to be somebody some day. They say that, when you expect a thing the least, that's when it always happens."...

After leaving his boss at the office one morning, Jim was driving leisurely along the avenue. From out of nowhere came a man with a broken nose and a pair of blazing eyes. He leaped on the running board of Jim's car and shoved a pistol into the chauffeur's ribs.

He leaped inside.

Jim drove. So, I think, would you. So, I'm positive, would I. In less time than it takes to tell it, the chase was on. And bullets began to fly from the police car in the rear.

It was all very evident. After searching for an opportunity all his life, the fates had evidently decreed that this was to be Jim's day. And those fates certainly handed him a tough assignment.

"Keep drivin', you bum," muttered the man in the rear. "Keep drivin—or you die."

Then he began to fire at his pursuers. As they raced by a corner, Jim saw a patrolman with a raised gun. He heard a report from the back. He saw the patrolman crumple. He gritted his teeth.

He swerved his car and ran into another. The bandit in the rear clutched at the seat, uttered a horrible oath and shot Jim Jackson through the head.

The bandit attempted to jump from the car. A policeman stepped up. The bandit had no chance. In two seconds he, too, was dead ....

* * *

So you see, my friends, Jim Jackson died a hero after all. But the irony of it was that nobody knew it but himself. For the papers carried this headline the following day:

"Heroic Policeman Kills Bandit and Accomplice." ....

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(Give a look and have a learn!)

That a chauffeur's mistake in driving the car of the Grand Duke Francis Ferdinand of Austria up the wrong street at Sarajevo, Serbia, on June 28, 1914, led to the Big Tiff. If he had driven, as directed, on the right street, the Grand Duke's military aide, sitting on the other side of the car, would have been assassinated instead, saving millions of lives, and all these tax tilts.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 14.—The most complacent of all sections during the world chaos is the Ghetto. Innured to poverty, disappointment and defeat, life there merely takes on a few additional restrictions. Push cart men offer lower prices, but this does not check the intensity of haggling.

The Ghetto housewife finds relief from her insular domesticity in explosive bargaining, and it means nothing, despite its ferocity. The depression in the Ghetto merely delays the gradual march uptown—from push-cart to Fourteenth street shop, Broadway store and the final Fifth avenue bazaar.

As heat blisters the asphalt, the Ghetto moves to pavements and fire-escapes. Children in loincloths fill sidewalks. Young sports knot at corners ogling the strolling maids. Wigged grand-parents stare out from the dark halls.

Penny lemonade and hokey-pokey peddlers are half dozen to a block.

Through the thoughtfulness of the street cleaning department, there is a refreshing half hour several times a week along such streets as Orchard, Stanton, Cherry and Forsythe. These thoroughfares are flushed with cool gushes from hydrants and children are hosed in the manner of elephants.

At night on the criss-cross of fire escapes, ballooned with bedding, men and women ignore modesties of life in a fitful struggle for sleep. One, too, forgets the Ghetto's plight, realizing it was the generating ground for the Max Steurs, George Gershwins and Eddie Cantors.

On the lower East Side, incidentally, I popped spang into the 60-cent table d'hote, vin compris, of other days. The wine is reported a bit brackish, but after all it's free. And potent, O boysey boy!

* * *

On upper Broadway a milk shop calls itself The Malky Walky. But the one sending many of us racing for the porthole stands on the side of the Pelham road—a hamburger stand heralding The Happy Hambies.

* * *

Large hotels relax in their attitude toward lobby loafing. In flush days loafers were aired by house dicks. But today, because such flaneurs relieve the desolation, they are welcomed. During frequent hardup spells of early days in New York, I spent many hours in those deep cushioned divans dotting the bewildering colonades, embering the forlorn hope that some opulent would step out of the passing scuff-scuff to announce: "You're just the man to represent me in London."

* * *

Indeed, there was a contact in the old Fifth Avenue one winter afternoon. A gentleman in an adjoining chair suddenly turned, observed: "You seem worried!" He didn't know the half of it. And we fell into prolonged talk. The upshot was an offer of $10,000 a year and travel expenses. By sheer coincidence he dropped into a chair three removed from mine in a shine parlor next morning. Before I could catch his eye he was dickering with a shiner to be his valet for $75 a week. It seems he hired everybody he met.

* * *

No two celebrities display such hippo-like and menacingly jutting chins as George Gershwin and Maurice Chevalier. It was Rube Goldberg, joining them at a cocktail party, who lifted his glass and toasted: "Chin-chin!"

* * *

At that interlude of offhand bohemianism when men enjoy cigars before joining the ladies after dinner, talk turned to realizing boyhood ambitions. I was the only one who had. When Grandma used to clap a milk crock on my head for one of those torturous homemade haircuts, I wished fervently to be bald some day. The ambition is now being realized.

None is so optimistic as the man with vanishing hair. Nor is any hope so futile. There is the story that Karl Kitchen, listening to a drug clerk's extravaganza about a new nostrum, stopped on his way out at another counter for a hair brush.

* * *

Leon Gordon whirls in, all dolled up in an ice-cream suit to observe that columnists, unlike portrait painters, do not have to worry about people sitting for them. Correct. But several of the boys should worry about people laying for them.

Forbes, Wife Are Now Apart

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 14. Whether or not it signifies a final parting of the ways, Ralph Forbes will remain in Hollywood to do a picture while Ruth Chatterton sails for Europe.

The young English actor has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play one of the more important roles with Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Through." This means that Norma will have a trio of prominent male players in support. Leslie Howard will arrive here about June 15 to enter the cast and Frederick March comes over from Paramount at the same time.

Ralph Forbes

In the meantime, Ruth Chatterton is on the high seas, and, according to common report, may ask a divorce from Forbes abroad. If so, it will be a friendly one, as she recently directed him in "Let Us Divorce," a stage play which ran briefly in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

With the country storming its approval of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s reversal of his prohibition stand, a certain Hollywood actress made, what this department considers, a pirze observation.

She looked up from the headlines and said:

"Yeah, I bet he was bought."

MORE GOSSIP

Herbert Marshall, one of the world's better actors and for a long time a holdout against the lure of the films, is that amused over the first day he spent in pictures. From morn till evening, he did nothing but bathe little Dickie Moore. And that with great circumspection because Marlene Dietrich's daughter, Maria, was on the set. . . . It may surprise you to know that Eddie Cantor is studying singing from Dr. Mario Marafioti, one time coach of Metropolitan stars. . . . George M. Cohan's talkie debut will be in a dual role. Broadway's famous actor-producer took his first test before the microphone Thursday. He delivered that well-remembered soapbox speech from "The Tavern." . . . The knee injury received by Frances Marion when she fell Sunday is much more serious than is generally imagined. She will undergo an operation within a few days and will have to remain in the hospital for four or five weeks...Groucho Marx threatens to buy a house in Hollywood.... If Ronald Colman does that U-boat story, Samuel Goldwyn is planning to include as wild an orgy as the censors will let him get by with. History itself set the precedent, he says, in the greetings received by the U-boat officers and crews when they returned to their home ports after under-sea depredations.

GOING THE ROUNDS

Your almost sleepless Hollywood correspondent made another round of the dancing places and discovered several Hollywood celebrities enjoying a few lighter moments. At the Cocoanut Grove were Buddy Rogers in a stag party (he says he won't do any pictures), Martha Sleeper with Randolph Scott again, Virginia Cherrill with the smooth dancing Tommy Lee, Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Butler.

At the Frolics were Joan Marsh and Eddie Grainger, Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay and, here's an interesting romance revived, "Peanuts" Byron with George Raft.

When Maurice Chevalier finishes his current picture, Hollywood will see the last of him for some time. The French star sails immediately for Europe, where he will spend the summer. According to his present plans, he will do no concerts, but may appear in a few charity benefits in Paris. The actor, you'll recall, supports almost unaided, a clinic for families of war veterans in Paris.

On his return to Hollywood, Chevalier probably will appear under Ernst Lubitsch's direction in "The Way to Love." This one is by Edwin Justis Mayer.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Jesse Quatse, Pitt tackle, selected for the 1931 All-American mythical football team by the All-America Board of Football, and other notable players of this particular 1931 "All-American" will comprise a team that will be seen in action in a motion picture, the filming of which will begin next month. This will be the first time in the history of All-American selections that such a team will have taken to the field as a body, and it is made possible through the efforts of Carl Leammle, Jr., and Christy Walsh. In addition to the players the five members of the All-America Board will be seen in the film. They include Glenn Warner, Stanford; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Jesse C. Harper, Notre Dame; Eddie Casey, Harvard, and Christy Walsh. The story for the picture is now being prepared by Richard Schayer and Dale Van Every, who wrote "The Spirit of Notre Dame." Red Cagle, Frank Cairideo, Moon Mullins and Ernie Nevers will be among the players on the team opposing the all-stars in the film.

Ray Henderson, press agent for Katharine Cornell, has let us wait all this while before apprising us of the fact that Rosa Ponselle broke one of her own rules in order to attend a performance of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in Pittsburgh. It seems that Miss Ponselle does not go out, but stays at home and rests the night before she is to give a recital. She had never found time in New York to see Miss Cornell in her latest play, so she broke her rule when both happened to be in Pittsburgh at the same time, she explained to Miss Cornell.

Al Jolson has begun work on "The New Yorker," film in which our own Vince Barnett will have a part. Other parts including Harry Langdon, Chester Conklin and Madge Evans...."Revolt" as a title for a Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., film has been protested by Harry Wagstaff, author of a play of the same title, produced four years ago....George Fitzmaurice will direct the next Constance Bennett picture, the story of which, not yet titled, is being written by Frances Marion.... "The Cabin in the Corn," new Richard Barthelmess photoplay, has been completed...."By Whose Hand" is the title selected for a film that had been called "Murder in a Pullman," wrich features Ben Lyon, with Baraba Weeks opposite.

Jekyll & Hyde In a Berlin Version

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It is not likely that Paul Lindau, the German novelist and dramatist who was quite the vogue 40 years ago, was familiar with Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," nor that Robert Louis knew of Lindau's tale of double personality, "Der Andere," which is presented in a German film version at the Avenue Cinema this week. But there is an uncanny resemblance between the plots, though Lindau has made his much more elaborate and melodramatic than Stevenson's simple tale. In the world of cheap variety and circus, in the thieves' kitchens of Berlin, he lets his stern and merciless district attorney become a partner of the underworld. His adventures culminate in his promise to assassinate the district attorney, and he goes to his own home with the underworld king, to kill himself. What could be more melodramatic?

Mr. Seibel

The photography is often lacking in deftness, the acting is often overdone, particularly in the dragging out of tempo to secure psychological effects, but the effect of the whole thing is impressive, even when the dialogue is inaudible. Fritz Kortner, who did so well in "Karamazov," is the district attorney and "the other one," as the title may be translated. He is not particularly convincing as the respectable jurist, but gets a realistic grip on the other side of the character. So also the scenes in the court-room and the attorney's home seem artificial, while the glimpses of the underworld are much more credible.

Three of the four short films this week are fine, especially a trip along the Columbia Highway in Oregon, showing some of the most beautiful cataracts, and a visit to the Isles of Birds on the coast of Peru, depicting the natural history of guano. A gypsy ballad number with Giovanni Martinelli is vocally attractive and a saxophone fantasia of Rudy Wiedoeft is absurd and dull.

'Should a Doctor Tell?' On Harris Screen

Women only are being admitted to the Harris this week to view "Should a Doctor Tell?" The picture deals with the problem of whether a doctor should or shouldn't reveal the secrets of his patients no matter what the reason.

BUCS, GIANTS AGAIN IDLE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Grove Again Nears Mark. Vets Saved by Control.
Keeping Up New Drive. Eastern Racing Periled.
Picking Fight Referee. Metcalfe Sprint Hope.

LEFTY WINS 107 OF LAST 127 GAMES

LEFTY GROVE soon may be assailing again the American League record for victories pitched in succession. Last year he equaled the mark of 16 straight, jointly established by Smoky Joe Wood and Walter Johnson in 1912, but with a new record almost in his grasp he ran into Dick Coffman, then with the Browns, in his seventeenth try and lost a heart-breaker, 1 to 0. Yesterday Grove hurled his eleventh straight win of the current campaign, and again may have a fighting chance to reach the goal. Another southpaw is right on his heels for a possible shot at the same record. Vernon Gomez, of the Yankees, turned in his ninth consecutive victory yesterday and is pitching as steadily as the Mackian ace.

Lefty Grove

Grove's present string is the third longest of his career. Prior to piling up 16 wins last season, he copped 14 in a row in 1928. His best run in 1929 was nine, and he had two streaks of seven each in 1930. His highest earlier mark was six in 1927. Season after season the pitching of the Athletics' star continues to be a marvel of consistency. Starting with 18 wins in his final 18 contests of 1928, he has won 107 of his last 127 games, a percentage of .843.

WHEN THE SUMMER meeting of the National League is held in New York one week from tomorrow, the matter of numbering the players probably will be taken up again. But whether there is any better chance of favorable action than previously is a question. The only clubs known to advocate the adoption of the system are Boston and Brooklyn, but they have always been voted down.

The Boston club numbers the Braves in its home games, but the players cannot wear the numerals away from home. "The American League players wear numbers because the baseball public wants them," [illegible] William Harridge said. "The system has increased the popularity of our games and it will remain a permanent feature."

PITCHER HENRY JOHNSON, released by the Yankees to the Red Sox in the deal for Danny MacFayden, and who went to his home in Bradenton, Fla., when informed of his transfer instead of reporting to Boston, remains firm in his refusal to join the Sox.

Johnson says he will stay in Bradenton indefinitely, and evidently hopes to force a second deal that will send him to a different club. If he carries his point the deal will have to be made in a hurry, as there can be no shifting after tomorrow except by waivers.

IN THE MATTER of selecting a referee for the heavyweight championship fight in Long Island City one week from tonight, Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, has laid a new suggestion before the New York Boxing Commission. He proposes that he and Johnny Buckely, Jack Sharkey's pilot, each be permitted to submit a list of referees, the man chosen to be one whose name appears on both lists. Jacobs has not given up hope of persuading the commission to give the assignment to George Blake. If the point is raised that the referee must be a resident of New York state, Jacobs will remind the fistic fathers that Jack Dempsey, like Blake, a Californian, was allowed to officiate in the Scott-Von Porat bout, considered at the time an important heavyweight elimination match.

Herb Pennock

IT ISN'T OFTEN that Herb Pennock is called on to pitch for the Yankees these days. Joe McCarthy uses the remarkable veteran judiciously, and only when he is feeling just right and has had a long rest. As a result, Pennock generally comes through. He has hurled four games to date and won all of them.

It is related that after losing two games to Cleveland last year by the same tough score, 2 to 1, Herb was being consoled by the other Yanks, but Babe Ruth refused to add his condolence. "You're lucky," said Ruth. "You've been fooling 'em with nothing five years longer than you had any license to do so. We old birds can't go on forever."

BUT PENNOCK IS still going on, and he has been doing it longer than any other pitchers in the big leagues except Jack Quinn and Eppa Rixey. Pennock and Rixey came up in the same year, 1912. Quinn entered in 1909, and is the oldest of the trio, though he has not stayed up continuously.

Critics who marvel at the durability of the three think that the explanation lies in the items of control and making the batters hit. They don't waste any pitches. They make every one count.

THIS APPLIES PARTICULARLY to Pennock and Quinn. In the last five years Pennock passed only 179 men in 1,001 innings, and Quinn walked only 163 in 833 innings. Rixey, a little more liberal, passed 247 in 1,003 innings. Knowing that there will be no pitches wasted and that the chance of a walk is slim, the batter quite often is forced to swing against his wishes and to hit at a ball he doesn't like. It is pointed out that when one pitcher delivers the ball 100 times in a game and another pitcher delivers it 150 times, the one will have pitched only six innings to the other's nine. This saving over a span of years shows why the Pennocks, Rixeys and Quinns continue to draw salaries from major league clubs long after the wasteful hurlers have passed.

THOUGH REDUCED PURSES are calculated to save something in the present race meeting at the Aqueduct track, turfmen in the East do not expect the session to be a great deal more successful financially than the one that closed at Belmont Park last week, on which the Westchester Association is said to have lost money.

It is reported that most of the New York tracks will remain closed next year unless a way can be found to permit cash betting instead of the oral system now in use. A bill to legalize that form of speculation is to be introduced at Albany in January, and on its passage may depend the fate of racing in the Empire State. There is said to be no desire on the part of the track owners for pari-mutuels.

SINCE HIS LATEST great performances in the National Collegiate meet, Ralph (Rabbit) Metcalfe, sensational Negro sprinter of Marquette University, Milwaukee, looms more strongly than ever as one of America's main hopes for victory in the dashes at the Olympic games.

Rarely are the speed ranks of the United States without a Negro star. First there was Howard Drew, then came Eddie Tolan, and now Metcalfe is burning up the tracks, not to mention Jim Johnson, of Illinois State Normal.

Ralph Metcalfe

UNCLE SAM has a wealth of other sprinting material for the Olympics. Even if Kiesel stays out and Simpson fails to recover his form, there are Wykoff, Tolan, Dyer, Toppino and more. But even in that classy field, Metcalfe may steal the show. His career has been sensational in the extreme. He beat Tolan three times in four meetings. Simpson likewise fell before his scorching speed, and so did Dyer, McCormick, Burnett, Oliver, Burns, Farmer, Klaner, Bennett, and other topliners. Three times this year the Marquette streak has equaled the accepted world record of 9.5 seconds for the 100-yard dash, and he has broken the world marks for 100 and 200 meters and 220 yards by doing those distances in 10.2, 20.2 and 20.5 seconds. Two years ago he won the century in the British-American meet in 9.8, and he holds the Central A. A. U. records for both the 100 and the furlong. Standing close to 6 feet and weighing 180 pounds,

KAUFFMANN HAS 67 TO PLACE NEAR TOP

By TOM BIRKS

Andy Szwedko, former caddie at the Pittsburgh Field Club, shaved four strokes from par to set the pace with a startling 62 as 42 free links stars trod the Schenley Park municipal course today in quest of the six places awarded this district in the national public links golf tournament, to be played at Louisville, Ky., July 19 to 23, inclusive.

Szwedko had nothing higher than a 4 on his card. He was out in 32 and home in 30, for a lead of four strokes over Raymond De Petrio, who was in second place at the finish of the morning 18-hole round. A second 18-hole round this afternoon concludes the qualifying test.

KAUFFMANN NEAR TOP

Carl F. Kauffmann, three times national public links champion and several times city champion, was in an advantageous position with a morning round of 67. He was tied at this figure with Dr. C. S. Brandon and Arthur Sekay, all-round athlete at Pitt. Kauffmann was rather shaky as he went out in 35, but an eagle 2 at the thirteenth hole, where he sank a 20-foot putt, helped him to tour the in-nine in 32 and kept him in the running. Dr. Brandon is a former Alcoma Country Club champion.

Four other entrants succeeded in breaking 70. They were:

Dick Wessell, 35-33—68; Marty Boschert, 34-34—68; Mike Galido, 31-37—68; J. Pasikowski, 37-32—69.

S. W. Phillips, present city champion, was back in the field with a 72. The cards of the leaders:

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A HANDLESS RAZOR—Randion was born of Hindu parents in Demarera, on the northern mainland of South America, about 56 years ago. Although he never had either arms or legs, he can thread a needle, feed himself, roll a cigaret, and do many seemingly impossible things. His most astounding accomplishment, however, is shaving himself unaided, using an old-fashioned razor. He has been exhibited in every part of the globe and greatly admired for his accomplishments and patience.

TOMORROW: A MIDGET MYSTERY.

KAUFFMANN SINKS 20-FOOTER

EAGLE 2 FEATURES FIRST ROUND OF THE PUBLIC LINKS TEST TODAY

Carl Kauffmann, three times National public links golf champion, playing in the qualifying round for this year's titular event over the Schenley Park course today. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows him walking off No. 13 green in the morning round after sinking a 20-foot putt for a 2, two strokes under par. He drew a rousing cheer from the gallery.

GOMEZ, GROVE DUEL TORRID

Associated Press.

Deprived for the time being of anything resembling a close pennant race, American League partisans are deriving most of their mid-season excitement from the hot duel between Vernon Gomez and Robert Moses Grove for pitching honors.

The two star southpaws, backed by clubs that provide them with plenty of runs, are setting a pace that promises soon to distance all rivals.

Defeating Cleveland yesterday, 8 to 7, Gomez stretched his record to 12 victories against one defeat and scored his ninth straight victory for the Yankees. Grove, beating Detroit, 8 to 1, on four scattered hits, observed his eleventh straight triumph and set his mark at 12 wins and three losses.

Gomez has not tasted defeat since May 2, when Washington knocked him from the hill in five innings. The Senators also handed Grove his last reverse when they beat the Athletic ace, 2 to 1, on April 30.

The home run race between Babe Ruth, of the Yanks, and Jimmy Foxx, of the A's remained at a standstill as each belted one out of the park. Foxx hit No. 23 off Tom Bridges, of Detroit. The Babe nicked Jack Russell for No. 21.

In the day's only other contest, the Chicago White Sox jumped on Ed Durham and Wilcy Moore for five runs in the seventh inning to beat the forlorn Boston Red Sox, 7 to 6.

BILLY JACOBS TWICE VICTOR

WILMINGTON, Del., June 14.—(AP.)—Most of the favorites, including a number of college stars tuning up for next week's intercollegiates, passed safely through the first and second rounds of the Delaware state tennis championships yesterday.

Seeded players who battled their way into the third round included Jack Tidball, of the University of California, Los Angeles branch; Karl Kamrath, of the University of Texas, and Jake Hess, of Rice Institute, holder of the Southwestern intercollegiate championship, and William Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh.

DOUBLEHEADER IN NEW YORK RAINED OUT

NEW YORK, June 4.—For the third straight day, rain today rained out the Pirates and Giants and left them in the predicament of having played only one game in the entire series, last Saturday.

The teams were billed for a doubleheader, in which Steve Swetonic and Heine Meine were to have opposed Freddie Fitzsimmons and Jim Mooney on the mound.

St. Louis at Brooklyn and Chicago at Boston also had doubleheaders wiped out by the continued rain today, leaving only the Phillies and Cincinnati Reds in the National League, left to play, in Philadelphia. They also were booked for two games.

The Buccos will head for Boston this evening. Five games in four days are scheduled with the Braves. A dual bill is carded for Friday, which is Bunker Hill Day in Boston.

ERATH SECOND AT CONNEAUT

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., June 1[illegible]—Paul (Toots) Erath, of the Edgewood Country Club, of Pittsburgh found himself in a strategic position today as a crack field of professionals and two amateurs set out in the second 36 holes of play in the annual Oakland Beach open tournament. Erath yesterday turned in rounds of 75 and 73 for a 148, two strokes back of the first day's leader, Jack Thompson, pro at the Tippecanoe Club, of Youngstown.

Thompson and Ted Luther, of the Valley Heights Club, of Pittsburgh, tied for the lead a year ago, with Thompson losing to the Pittsburgher in the play-off. Yesterday, he had two rounds of 73 for a 146.

Pete O'Hara, the wizard of the Westmoreland Country Club, paced the field in the morning round with a 71, faded away in the afternoon and slipped badly to turn in an 80. Ted Luther, defending champion; Sam Parks, Jr., and Walter Johnstone, of Butler, tied for third place with 151's.

Wingard Pitches One-Hit Shutout

INDIANAPOLIS, June 14.—(AP.)—Ernie Wingard limited the Minneapolis Millers to one hit, Sicking's single in the fifth, while his mates pounded two visiting hurlers for 17 safeties last night as Indianapolis won, 13 to 0, regaining second place in the American Association.

$400,000 GATE FOR BIG GO

NEW YORK, June 14.—(INS.)—A crowd of 60,000 with a gate of at least $400,000 is expected by Madison Square Garden officials when Max Schmeling meets Jack Sharkey here, June 21, for the world heavyweight title.

William F. Carey, president of the Garden, said today the advance sale already had passed $200,000.

The new Garden bowl in Long Island City will seat 70,000 fans.

MAX IMPRESSES CORBETT

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 14.—(INS.)—Max Schmeling's condition is "amazing," according to James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion.

Corbett, who saw the champion work out here yesterday said the German was hitting better than ever and is in superb physical shape.

"If Sharkey expects to defeat Schmeling, he'll have to do it in the first six or eight rounds," Corbett said.

Corbett declined to make any prediction about the outcome of the bout.

GOB SCORES KNOCKDOWN

ORANGE, N. Y., June 14.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, preparing here for his fight against Max Schmeling, in New York, June 21, hoped for better weather today so he could work outdoors.

Almas Club Golfers Hold Tourney Today

The annual golf tournament of the Almas Club is being staged today over the Castle Shannon Golf Club. Play got under way at 10 o'clock and was scheduled to continue throughout the afternoon.

The contestants will wind up the program this evening with a dinner and card party.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—Did you ever stop to think where those Phillies would be if they had a couple of real pitchers? Practically every day they score enough points to win a rubber of bridge and then their opponents come to bat and the Phils' eight or 10-run lead dissolves like glycerin in a bathtub of gin.

Nick Altrock

So many Quakers get chased off the slab, the Phillies' management tore out the shower baths and installed a community swimming pool for its flingers.

I really think the Phils would get better results with the batteries reversed and the catchers doing the pitching. Anyway, it couldn't be any worse.

FARGO EXPRESS WONDER MAN OF RING

BILLY AT BEST IN ROLE OF 'COMEBACK'

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express!

There's magic in the name, and an utter lack of ostentation about the 27-year-old veteran of the ring, who meets Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, in the 10-round windup of the second show at Greenlee Field tomorrow night.

There's magic in the name because the quiet Petrolle that exists outside the ring is dynamite when he crawls through the ropes. The fight fans like a fighter and a puncher. It's thumbs down on the clever boxer who lacks a wallop.

In New York, it's a tossup between Jimmy McLarnin and Petrolle as to which has given the fans their greatest thrills since the Dempsey-Firpo fight. Both are blasters. Petrolle starts in at the tap of the gong in the opening round and finishes up his opponents just as quickly as he can.

STORY OF 'COMEBACK'

Back in 1929, Petrolle, an Italian, who was born in Berwick, Pa., near Philadelphia, thought he was all washed up and quit the ring. His comeback, following a rest, has been the marvel of the ringworms. He's been a better performer since his return than he ever was before he hung up the gloves. I asked his manager, Jack Hurley, to tell me the story of his comeback and the reason for his success, while Billy was working out with two sparring partners at the Pittsburgh Lyceum, putting the finishing touches on his training for the Grogan battle. He said:

"It was this way. Billy had about $50,000 salted away and was listening to his relatives and friends, who wanted him to quit and live on the income. They finally convinced him. I fought against the plan, told him he wouldn't be satisfied and would be coming back sooner or later, and he might as well stick around while the purses were good. But he had made up his mind and wouldn't listen. Said he could get a job and make around $300 a month and wouldn't have to touch his savings. So he quit.

REGRETS RETIREMENT

"He was in for a sad awakening. He found out that the friends he knew as Billy Petrolle, the boxer, disappeared when his name no longer appeared in the newspaper headlines. He tried to get a job, but couldn't make $25 a week. After a while he came to his senses and wanted to return to the ring. I told him it was too late, that he would have to start all over again for piker purses, but he said he was willing. We agreed to go along for three fights as a trial. He started winning and knocked out 10 men out of 13 and then was matched with Tony Canzoneri in Chicago, and won in 10 rounds.

"After the Canzoneri bout, I berated him because he didn't knock out Tony. 'You could have done it,' I said. 'It's a state of mind with you.' He agreed, saying he had not extended himself because he was afraid of getting tired and blowing up, but felt now that he was ready. He told me to get anybody for him, to throw him to the wolves. I did just that thing and you know the rest. It's history."

SECRET OF SUCCESS

As for the secret of Petrolle's success, Hurley said it lay in careful matchmaking. He elaborated:

"I won't let him go in with any of those fast-stepping, pretty boxers who tap and run. The first sign of deterioration in any athlete comes in his legs. Billy's legs aren't as spry as they once were. He can't chase those nimble-legged youngsters any more. He's at his best when the other fellow will stand up and fight him. Then he sets himself on his flat feet and punches it out, and he'll knock out anybody who will trade with him. He's a weaver and a bobber, on the Dempsey order, and he hits hard enough to knock over a house. Yes, he's a great old man of the ring at 27—one of the wonders of the world. He doesn't want any soft matches. His delight is to get in there with rugged youngsters who think they have a chance to beat him. Fellows like Justo Suarez, Eddie Ran and Billy Townsend. He belts them out as fast as they start to mix.

TAMED M'LARNIN

"How about Jimmy McLarnin? You know what happened to Jimmy the first time they met. McLarnin thought he had a chance to whip my old man, and took the slaughtering of his life. When they fought again, McLarnin kept on the run, jabbing and flicking. He knows better than to stand up and fight with my old man.

"Do you know that with all of his success Billy hasn't changed a bit? He still carries his own training paraphernalia into the gymnasium and on a fight night you'll see him carrying his grip to the arena. He doesn't want to be treated like a king, and waited upon hand and foot. He isn't a bit high-hat. He's never had a rubdown after a workout. A long time ago, I told him a good fighter doesn't need a rubdown and a bad fighter doesn't deserve one, and that's his gospel.

"Just watch my old man shuffle and weave and bob around against Grogan. I think you'll agree with me that he has just learned HOW to fight in the sunset days of his career."

SURE OF WINNING TITLE

I asked Hurley how long Petrolle intended to continue fighting.

"Just as long as the purses keep up and he continues to win," was the reply. "When the young kids begin to belt him around, he'll be ready to quit for all time with a real fortune stowed away to keep the wolf from the door. But before that time arrives he'll be the lightweight champion. He's made up his mind to win a title before he quits, and he's sold himself on the idea that he can accomplish anything he sets out to do."

Just a word about Hurley. A tall, good-looking gent, who also manages Charley Retzlaff, the heavyweight, he's one of the best-liked managers in the game. A regular fellow, his colleagues say about him, and white all the way through. He doesn't have a contract with Petrolle—and doesn't need one.

YAROSZ BOUT RECARDED TONIGHT

Postponed last night because of threatening weather, the Ted Yarosz-Johnny Indrisano bout will be staged in the Meyers Bowl arena tonight. The management announced its postponement at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in time to head off fans from distant points, all of whom it expects to turn out tonight.

Instead of calling upon the boxers to weigh in at the Bowl yesterday, Matchmaker Lew Raymond notified them they would not be asked to weigh until today, thus permitting them to go into the gymnasium to keep on edge for the new date.

CHOCOLATE-FARR MATCHED

In the event of another postponement tonight, the show will have to be set back indefinitely. Greenlee Field is scheduled to operate tomorrow night with Saturday night available in the event of a postponement of its show and Hickey Park, in Millvale, has a card of bouts booked for Thursday, with Friday as its choice of a postponed date. The Bowl has booked Kid Chocolate, the junior-lightweight champion, with Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, for its windup next Monday night.

The entire preliminary card arranged for last night will carry over.

Tonight's Fights

Ted Yarosz vs. Johnny Indrisano, 10 rounds; Mose Rutch vs. Babe Collins, 8 rounds, and Fritzie Zivic vs. Steve Sencich and Max Elling vs. Packy McFarland, 6 rounds each, Meyers Bowl.

Isadore Gastanaga vs. Hans Birkie, Adolph Heinz vs. Lew (Tiger) Flowers and Hale Brown vs. Johnny Krieger, 8 rounds each; Izzy Singer vs. Walter Braun, 6 rounds, and Abie Feldman vs. Al White, 4 rounds, Queensboro Stadium, New York.

Amateur bouts at open-air arena of Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club, North Side, and B. & O. A. C., Hazelwood.

Fidel LaBarba vs. Tommy Paul, 10 rounds, Los Angeles.

Vince Dundee vs. Abie Bain, 10 rounds, and Freddie Fiduria vs. Leo Ferry, 8 rounds, Newark, N. J.

Between Rounds

The new federal admission tax on boxing shows goes into effect next Tuesday, instead of on July 1, as at first announced, which means that the last local show to be exempt will be that of Monday night at the Meyers Bowl. The tax is 10 per cent, and is added to the face value of the tickets.

The Lee Sala-Anson Green windup at Hickey Park Thursday night is a repeat number, Sala having won a six-round decision over the dusky Homesteader in the same ring recently. They will top off a card of four eight-rounders.

An extra bout has been added to the Billy Petrolle-Tommy Grogan card at Greenlee Field tomorrow night, bringing together Ray Winbush and Johnny Curtin in a six-round opener. Prince Saunders boxes Mickey Duris in an eight-rounder following the windup and Len Sheppard, of Detroit, meets Charley Baxter and Johnny Riske takes on Jack Snyder in two other six-rounders.

JEROME ATTEL HURT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—(INS.)—Jerome Attel, brother of Abe Attel, former champion pugilist, was suffering today from a brain concussion received when he was struck by a street car here.

BOUT FOR RETZLAFF

Charley Retzlaff will box Hans Birkie in one of the preliminaries on the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey bout in Long Island City one week from tonight.

WILLIE DAVIES AND THOMAS BEATEN

TORONTO, Ont., June 14.—(INS.)—Winning the last three rounds with a smashing, two-fisted attack which wiped out his opponent's early lead, Emile Pladner, Paris, bantamweight champion of Europe, today boasted a close decision over Willie Davies, classy Charleroi (Pa.), fighter. They met here last night before 3,000 fans in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The bout was the hardest fought in Toronto for some time and only Pladner's heavier punching earned him victory.

For first five rounds, Davies jabbed and danced his way to a comfortable lead. Then the Frenchman's terrific blows began to exact their toll and the game little Welshman took plenty of punishment towards the end.

From the seventh round on, Pladner chased Davies from corner to corner, pouring a barrage of terrific punches into his midsection. Davies managed to weather the storm and at the final bell still was on his feet.

Davies' eye was badly cut in the second round and partially blinded him. Both boys weighed under the class limit, Davies scaling exactly 118, and Pladner half a pound lighter.

Pete Sanstol, blond Norwegian bantamweight, defeated Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh Negro, in another 10-rounder on the card.

Frenchy Belanger, Toronto, former world flyweight titleholder, essaying a comeback as a bantam, stopped Mike Barrett, Erie, Pa., after 59 seconds, in the first round.

Fight Results

At Toronto—Emile (Spider) Pladner defeated Willie Davies, 10 rounds; Pete Sanstol defeated Jimmy Thomas, 10 rounds; Frenchy Belanger defeated Mike Barrett, 1 round.

At Louisville—Bill Roederer knocked out Steve Kaplan, 3 rounds.

At San Francisco—Andy DiVodi won by a technical knockout over Paddy Creedon, 7 rounds; Jon Glick defeated Gaston Le Cadre, 10 rounds; Jack League defeated Jack Beasley, 4 rounds.

At Syracuse—Mickey Serrian defeated Rip Mashaw, 10 rounds.

At Miami, Fla.—Relampago Ruguero won by technical knockout over Young Russell, 7 rounds.

At Dayton, O.—Roy (Tiger) Williams defeated George Pavlik, 10 rounds; Leo Vines knocked out George Beatty, 2 rounds.

Armstrong, Biery Coaches at Trinity

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 14.—Maurice Armstrong, brilliant Washington and Jefferson College gridiron athlete, and Julius Biery, former Waynesburg College athlete and for the past four years athletic director at North Union High School, have been named as the coaching staff at Trinity High School here. Both men will be tendered one-year contracts and will assume their positions next fall.

The four major sports of the school, football, basketball, baseball and track, will be under the mentorship of Armstrong and Biery. The two men succeed Thomas Ellwood, formerly of Redstone Township High School, who has been at Trinity for the past three years. Ellwood has been retained as a teacher and physical education instructor.

POLOISTS PLAY TONIGHT

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 14.—The Robin Hoods and the Deer Park Users, of Pittsburgh, meet in a polo game here tonight. The match is the feature on the Flag Day program.

TIGERS, RED SOX STAGE SWAP

BOSTON, June 14.—(AP.)—Making its third important trade in a week, the Boston Red Sox sent Earl Webb, hard-hitting outfielder, to Detroit in exchange for Dale Alexander, the big first baseman, and Outfielder Roy Johnson. President Bob Quinn said no cash was involved in the transaction.

Webb set a new major league record for doubles last year with 67 and piled up a batting average of .333, the best Red Sox performance. This year he slumped badly, batting but .283 in 50 games and fielding for .959.

The deal, President Quinn said, will give the last place Red Sox additional hitting strength in the infield, for Alexander batted .325 last season, and a polished outfielder in Johnson, whose 1931 batting mark was .275.

Johnny Rothrock, outfielder obtained by the White Sox from the Red Sox, has been released to Toronto under option.

Federal Reserve System To Keep Present Policy; Excess Reserves Strong

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The end of the first phase of the Federal Reserve policy of counter deflation through open market purchases of United States government obligations has been reached.

It is not true that the system is on the point of abandoning its policy. It has, however, reached a stage in which it merely desires to maintain excess reserves at the present level, instead of trying to augment them further. Excess reserve balances of member banks have been kept at about $225,000,000.

Mr. Rukeyser

Meantime, the committee of six bankers and six industrialists in New York, headed by Owen D. Young, and similar committees in other districts, are canvassing additional safe outlets for such expanded credit facilities. The National Electric Light Association and the Association of Electrical Manufacturers, for example, have been asked to make surveys of sound construction and developmental projects in their field, which might be undertaken if cheap credit were available.

PLANS OUTLINED

Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific Company, came East to present a plan for extending credits to the railroads for developmental and maintenance work, which he said would recall 100,000 jobless men to employment.

The Young committee has leaned toward favoring broadening the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation so that it could lay emphasis on aiding projects entailing job giving construction.

These emergency co-operative agencies are also considering the suggestion of using this prestige of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation virtually to fix minimum prices for agricultural staples through advising banks to make such loans and offering to take them over on request.

Some bankers have urged that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to make loans to the carriers to enable them to repurchase their depreciated bonds at bargain prices, retire them, thus reduce their fixed charges, and automatically enhance their financial position. This type of speculative operation, however, entails a questionable use of public funds, which, in my opinion, ought to be conserved for job creating, wealth producing purposes.

CONSTRUCTION DROPS

Despite the decline in public construction this year, it assumes an unusually large proportion in time of depression of total construction. Based on contract awards for the first five months of the year, F. E. Schmitt, editor, Engineering News-Record, makes the subjoined forecast of total building operations for the full year of 1932:

1932 construction, based on January-May awards:

Federal, $372,000,000; state and municipal, $1,290,000,000; total public, $1,662,000,000.

Private engineering, $814,000,000; residential, $326,000,000; total private, $1,140,000,000.

Total construction estimate, $2,802,000,000.

In 1929, the total public works construction amounted to $3,263,000,000; in 1930, $3,363,000,000; in 1931, $3,183,000,000. The decline in other than federal construction is relatively greater than the federal outlay. Last year total private construction amounted to $1,036,004,000, of which $885,000,000 was residential.

Economist Favors Standardized Data

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Prof. William Z. Ripley, famous economist, suggested, before the Senate committee investigating stock trading, that all businesses engaged in interstate commerce should be required to give in standardized form the condition of their affairs. This, he contended, would stop short-selling and bull and bear operations. He said a bureau should be set up where all the information would be filed.

WALL STREET HEARS

That some of the selling in the securities markets has been for the purpose of raising cash to pay the June 15 income tax payments.

That there is little likelihood that Northern Pacific directors will declare a dividend when they meet tomorrow.

That Wrigley's second quarter earnings will cover the dividend requirement.

That disconnections of telephones by A. T. & T. subsidiaries in May was the largest for any month since the depression set in.

That automobile sales in May totaled about 154,000, a gain of 8½ per cent over April, contrary to the usual seasonal trend.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 14.—With volume showing a slight pickup, curb market quotations firmed moderately today.

BUSINESS

Insurance Companies Selling Below Current Liquidating Values

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

INVESTMENT INTEREST is being attracted to the stocks of insurance companies, particularly to organizations writing fire and similar risks.

These organizations have shown an exceptionally good record in the past both for safety of principal, yield and appreciation in value. Since 1929 the business has gone through a period of stresses and strains in common with other types of commercial activity.

The value of the insurance companies today is directly dependent upon the skill with which their executives handled their investment portfolios. Good judgment is carrying many insurance companies through the trying depression period without serious difficulties. Bad judgment has put a few organizations into embarrassing situations. But where good judgment has been used, insurance stocks are believed to offer exceptional investment opportunities.

* * *

Companies Compared To Investment Trusts

INSURANCE COMPANIES bear strong resemblances to investment trusts in their method of operation and in their appeal to ivestors, but they are not involved in some of the unfavorable conditions affecting the latter type of organization.

Diversification is the keynote of insurance operation. Over long periods of years they have been able to draw an accurate statistical picture of the losses which may be expected in proportion to insurance written. The dangers from losses due to major catastrophies, such as another San Francisco fire, are eliminated by spreading risks over a wide territory and by the reinsuring of portions of risks which are highly concentrated.

Insurance Companies Profit on Underwriting

THE INSURANCE companies normally show a moderate profit from their underwriting activities. That is, their income from premiums paid usually exceeds their expenses and amounts paid out for claims. The surplus is invested, and it is from the income of investments and the steady enlargement of this equity that the insurance companies secure a stable income which ordinarily shows a steady year by year growth.

The profit on underwriting may vary widely from year to year. The investment income is not variable except under exceptional circumstances such as those of the present time, and where good management has been shown even this variation has not been great.

As matters stand today, the stocks of many insurance companies can be bought for amounts far below their liquidating values. In other words, the buyer of insurance company stocks today, if he buys the stocks of well managed companies, is purchasing equities in diversified lists of high grade securities, also equities in the profits of a business not greatly affected by general trade depression, for less than these securities would cost in the open market.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 14.—Aside from the strength of German government issues, the bond market was a somewhat dull and colorless affair today. French 7⅛s were heavy and British 5½s off slightly. The Austrians were steady while the Australians were subjected to some profit taking. The United States government department was moderately firm.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STOCKS AGAIN MOVE QUIETLY FORWARD

Agitation in Republican Ranks for Repeal Aids Advance in Chemicals

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP.)—Securities markets moved quietly forward today, after yesterday's period of hesitancy.

Strength of the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, predictions of defeat of the bonus measure in the Senate, and of an early adjournment of Congress, as well as agitation for a repeal plank in the Republican platform, were regarded in brokerage circles as influencing the advance.

The stock market was hesitant in the early dealings, but started upward with a 2-point advance in National Distillers Products, and a similar gain in Corn Products Refining. American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Allied Chemical, Du Pont and Air Reduction were other firm spots in the chemical group, up 1 to 2 points. American Telephone and Union Pacific also pushed up 2 points, while Eastman gained about 3. Gains of a point or more were numerous, appearing in United States Steel, American Can, American Sugar, National Biscuit, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Woolworth, Westinghouse, North American, Standard of New Jersey and Consolidated Gas. Auburn fluctuated widely, but failed to make consistent progress in either direction.

Strength of United States government issues in the bond market was apparently a factor in the firm tone of stocks. These issues were presumably helped by the predicted defeat of the soldier bonus measure, and the substitution of the provisions of the Wagner relief bill for the Garner measure by the Senate Banking Committee, since the Wagner measure calls for less government financing. Wall street, however, seemed more interested in the adjournment of Congress than anything else at the moment, bringing an end to legislative uncertainty.

Strength of the alcohol stocks was the most pronounced in some time, although the effect of the repeal agitation was apparently almost wholly psychological, for security analysts point out that at best modification of the prohibition laws would take some time, and that at this juncture it is all but impossible to tell how individual securities might be affected. The sugar stocks generally turned firm, coincident with announcement by leading refiners of an increase in the price of their product. The rails acted well, for the report of freight car loadings for the week ended June 4, showing a drop was about as expected. Omission of New Haven's preferred dividend had been anticipated.

WHEAT AT NEW LOW FOR YEAR

CHICAGO, June 14.—Sharp breaks in wheat values here today place early today following sudden downturns in European quotations and reports of heavy selling at Liverpool. With stop loss orders dislodged, all deliveries of wheat and rye in Chicago outdid the season's bottom price record. Opening 3/8 to 1 3/8 lower, Chicago wheat futures continued to drop. Corn started 1/4 to 1/2 off and later held near the initial limits.

Nearly entire absence of speculative demand, however, left the Chicago wheat market most of the day devoid of energy for rallies. Today's low prices, nevertheless, did not establish a new all-time bottom record for wheat, December contracts having sold down to 44 3/8 cents a bushel last October, with cash wheat down to 45 cents in August. In September, 1852, cash wheat sold at 44 cents, and in May, 1852, it was as low as 28 cents, the latter figures being the minimum in Chicago records covering a period of 90 years. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat price downturns.

Provisions were bearishly affected by the action of cereals, despite firmness of hog values.

COTTON CLOTH QUOTATIONS STRONGER

Curtailment of Output In South Boosts Prices; Seasonal Volume Small

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 14.—Drastic curtailment by southern cotton mills, bringing output to the lowest point in many years, has already had a favorable influence in the market for unfinished fabrics. Sales of print cloths and carded broadcloths have shown a decided increase. Prices on these goods, which dropped below replacement value last week, have strengthened steadily this week. The price of 64x60, 38½-inch print cloths for spot and nearby delivery has held steadily during the last week, at 3⅛ cents a yard for spot and nearby delivery, as against the season's low quotation of 2⅞ cents prevailing several weeks ago.

SPOT BUYING

Virtually all sales are for spot or prompt delivery. Buyers have been unable to place forward business at existing prices, and faced with declining production have paid advances where goods past July delivery were purchased.

Sheetings are somewhat better, although buying is widely scattered.

Warmer weather has brought out slightly more business in fine goods, but the seasonal volume is still small. Sheer cottons are moving better at retail, and converters show more interest in their future requirements.

RUNNING TIME CUT

The market for fabrics of rayon content has settled somewhat since the demoralization caused by the recent drop in rayon prices. Knitters are very slow buyers of rayon yarns and the lack of hosiery demand has caused widespread curtailment by the mills.

Beginning in print cloths and carded broadcloths, where half-time operations have been in effect for some weeks, shorter running time has been adopted by mills on practically all classes of goods and yarns. A number of the more important gray goods producers have closed completely. Others are averaging from half-time to one-fourth time. Night work has declined materially.

Reserve Members' Loans Decrease

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The statement of weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks, as of June 8, shows decreases for the week of $304,000,000 in loans and investments, $111,000,000 in net demand deposits, $40,000,000 in time deposits, $129,000,000 in government deposits and $19,000,000 in reserve balances with Reserve banks. Borrowings from Reserve banks increased $10,000,000.

Loans on securities totaled $4,795,000,000, a decrease of $109,000,000. All other loans amounted to $6,599,000,000, a drop of $125,000,000 during the period.

World Bank Agrees To Austrian Credit

CAR LOADINGS DROP 73,573

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Loadings of revenue freight during the week ended June 4, which included the Memorial Day holiday, totaled 447,387 cars, a decrease of 73,575 under the preceding week, 313,697 cars under the corresponding week in 1931 and 488,195 cars less than the like 1930 week.

Wall Street Spectator

Big Stock Liquidation Seems to Have Ended

NEW YORK, June 14.—(INS.)—Wall street today leaned to the constructive side as the market's action yesterday stimulated sentiment.

A sharp sell-off had been generally expected due to further profit-taking and the bonus vote, but neither brought any material pressure. This would seem to confirm the belief that the big liquidation has been completed, which would be another encouraging development.

The change in the attitude was reflected shortly before the close, when word went around not to be short of the market.

Some are going so far as to predict an uptrend lasting a month or more; but just one week would look very good right now.

Russia's reported discovery of a vast oil field in the Urals couldn't have been timed any better in view of the part Soviet representatives played in the break-up of the recent international petroleum conference. All this worry about the government's being shy $150,000,000 or so of balancing the budget seems needless. Why not borrow it from the Reconstruction Corporation? Not only would it be simple and painless, but it would be quite the prevailing fashion. The prohibition situation must not be ignored as a market factor in view of the strength of the repeal movement. Competent observers are of the opinion a repeal plank in the G. O. P. platform might turn out as important marketwise as the Hoover moratorium just a year ago.

I. C. A. A. A. A. STARS SET

FIVE NAMED TO COMPETE ON COAST

By JESS CARVER

Five tri-state district college track and field stars will depart Sunday morning for the land of little rain, much wind and astonishingly husky athletes—otherwise known as California—for participation in the annual I. C. A. A. A. A. (count 'em A's) track and field championships at Berkeley, July 1 and 2. Three of the five will represent Pitt, the others hailing from Carnegie Tech and West Virginia.

The Panther members of the squad include Woody Harris, sprinter; Bill Keller, the blushing violet middle distance stepper, and Jim MacMurdo, shot putter. Carnegie will send Capt. Tom Coulter, the man-of-all-work of the Tech track team, Canadian Olympic prospect and a wow of a 440-yard hurdler. West Virginia's entry is the cinder scorching Gordon Fraser, who is credited with a 9.6 century sprint for the year.

The boys are booked to compete in the annual A. M. A. senior championship meet in the Pitt Stadium here Saturday. Coach Frank Shea, of Pitt, will accompany the lads to the meet in the Pitt Stadium here.

The first and second place winners in the A. M. A. meet will qualify for the Olympic quarter-final carnival in Cincinnati June 25. This meet will afford Geneva's high jump star, Howard Spencer, with a second opportunity to get to California for the final tryouts. Spencer failed to make the grade in the N. C. A. A. meet in Chicago last week.

Former Sandlot Mound Star Dead

Cuban Stars vs. Pittsburgh Crawfords, 4 p. m. (two games).

Headed by the Dormont-Homewood City League game scheduled for the Homewood playgrounds, a full sandlot card confronts local fans today. Dormont, battling for the league leadership, will find plenty of opposition from George Spiers and the East Enders. Spiers has been working miracles with the Homewood aggregation. The fans should see a great battle.

Carrick Eagles will be battling to keep step with the Homestead Aces in the West Penn loop at Carrick High School field this evening. The Eagles are playing classy baseball and feel they eventually will win out in the title chase.

In independent circles, the Pittsburgh Crawfords will meet the Cuban Stars in a doubleheader at Greenlee Field. The Cubans are one of the most popular road clubs to hit Pittsburgh. The Crawfords will have to step to beat this aggregation of hitters.

Dormont lost valuable ground last evening, being blanked by the J. L. Thomas nine, 1-0. Bob Foster outpitched Red Whitemore, giving up but six scattered hits. In other City League frays, Homewood defeated the Frank Ferris nine, 5-1, and the Books stopped the Geislers, 2-0.

The Crawfords scored six runs in the first inning against the Cuban Stars and landed an 8-to-3 victory. Josh Gibson hit one over the fence with two men on base in the first frame.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, city section, the McGraths defeated Wilson, 5-0, and West End nosed out Fineview, 5-4. In the West Penn League, the Soho McKnights tripped the St. Clair Frogs, 6 to 5.

In the Want-Ad Pages of Today's Sun-Telegraph

you will find the titles of several popular motion picture plays. One of these titles is the correct answer for Movie Lovers Contest Picture No. 9, herewith printed. Which is the correct title? Find and write the name below the contest picture. Do not submit any pictures until the end of the contest.

Follow These Simple Rules —Read the Prize Lists

(1) The Movie Lovers contest will consist of a series of 60 cartoons to appear in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph—one each day for 60 consecutive publication days—starting Monday, June 6th. The contestants are to find the correct title for each picture from a list of motion picture titles that will be printed every day, scattered among the WANT ADS every day throughout the life of this contest. Mere lists of answers will not be accepted as an entry. The answers must be accompanied by the pictures you think said answers represent. Do not submit any pictures or answers until the entire set of 60 has been printed. Entrants are advised against an elaborate arrangement in submitting entries. Remember, the awards will be made for correctness of identity of the pictures, correct spelling of titles in your entry and neatness. Misspelled titles in your entry will be counted as total errors.

(2) The contest is open to everyone living in Pittsburgh or within 100 miles of Pittsburgh, with the exception of employes of the Sun-Telegraph and of WCAE, Incorporated, or any member of their families.

Shepard Gives Lynn a Ring But She Refuses to Become Engaged

CHAPTER VI.

"Is it getting serious—young Shepard, I mean?" Miss Dennet had asked with anxiety.

"Of course not," Lynn had answered.

But it was. It was gay and idiotic and enchanting and sweet and, underneath, as serious as life and death. Lynn knew it. She tried to pretend that she didn't know it. I like Tom and he likes me, she told herself. Well, perhaps we are crazy about each other. But it doesn't mean anything. We'll get over it. Why, I can't let it mean anything. I don't want to marry Tom. I don't want to marry anyone. It's too much of a risk. And I'm just getting somewhere with my job. Men are complications.

Yet Tom had not asked her to marry him. "You're my girl, aren't you?" he would say at unexpected moments and in unexpected places. And before Christmas he had kissed her soundly, boyishly, and not under the mistletoe, either.

Lynn thought sometimes after Tom had left her: It can't go on like this—being together a lot, laughing, talking, kissing now and then—it can't go on. I mean, we can't get married, can we?

Her people wanted her to come home Christmas. But the Seacoast Bank was not a boarding school: it gave no long vacations at holiday seasons. She wrote, therefore, that she would not be home, and her mother wrote back sorrowfully that she was so disappointed—there would be a tree and fixin's, and after Christmas she and Lynn's father were going South.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Lynn had her Christmas at Sarah Dennet's. Sarah and her friend, Anna Frank, had rather outgrown Christmas. They gave each other costly but sensible gifts and were relieved when it was all over. "Disorganizing," they said. But Sarah, despite an inner reluctance, invited Tom for dinner, too, so for a short space there was youth in the quiet apartment, and laughter and silly jokes.

Tom had brought them all presents from the Five and Ten. He'd been there for dinner before, and so knew his hostesses and their black maid. He brought them egg beaters and tiny trucks and jointed wooden toys. He brought Lynn innumerable idiocies: a pair of woolen socks to keep her feet warm; a pair of rubbers which would fold up into a hand bag; doll's clothespins; and a doll's refrigerator, because she liked a glass of milk at night.

Lynn, who had spent more than she could afford upon the cigaret case and lighter she gave him, was not in the least disappointed. She was enchanted, because early in the evening he had told her, "I've got something for you—very special—but it needn't have publicity.

LYNN GETS RING

He gave it to her going back to the club in a taxi. A ring, it was, modest, twinkling, a good small stone.

She said, "Tom, you shouldn't."

And he asked, "Don't you like it, darling? I hoped you would like it."

She cried, "I love it!" and let him put it on her finger, let him touch with his boy's hard mouth her own surrendering lips; and later asked, breathless, drawing away, "But—what does it mean?"

He was sobered, after his moment of blind ecstacy. He repeated stupidly, "Mean?" He said less stupidly, "Why, you, of course—and me. That we belong. We do, don't we?"

She told him, still breathless, "But we can't bind ourselves to anything, now—We—we're too young, Tom. You have your way to make. I have mine. Can't you see?"

He could see. He had to see, on the $50 a week the bank was paying him. He said, "I know. I don't mean to bind you, you know that. I thought you'd wear it for now, because we belonged."

She wore it on her right hand as a concession.

CONSIDERS MOVING

Looking at the ring, Jennie commented, her narrow eyes widening, "That's Tom, of course. When are you going to get hitched?"

"We aren't; that is, not now. We aren't really even engaged."

"I see." Jennie didn't, quite. When girls wore diamonds and weren't going to be married and weren't even really engaged, they wore larger diamonds. Such was her simple lexicon. She added, yawning, "Slim's getting pretty goofy. He's a great kid, but not for me. I'd rather struggle along on the 40 per, thank you."

"Has he—?" began Lynn.

"He has. He wants to make a down payment on a house in Jersey," said Jennie. "Can you tie that?"

In January Jennie did an unprecedented thing. Shortly before noon she wandered into Lynn's room at the bank. Miss Marple eyed her severely. Jennie had been showing spring models, and she still wore her heavy makeup.

"Lynn!"

Lynn looked up from a frowning contemplation of a blue card which stated that one Hamilton Yates belonged to the Union Club, had an inherited income of thirty thousand a year, had twice been married, begotten three children, paid alimony and was not, as yet, a client of the Seacoast Company.

"Lord," said Jennie, reading all this over Lynn's shoulder, "wouldn't it be a break if you met him some day and said, 'Hello, Ham, old egg, what I know about you!' "

"It's one of my nightmares," Lynn told her. "What's the matter, Jennie?"

"Lots. Can you chow with me?"

"I can, in 20 minutes."

"Oke," agreed Jennie, and wandered away again, casting a curious glance at the filing cabinets, which repelled her slightly, as did the clicking of typewriters, the efficient mechanism of the place. Sales research, any kind of research, afflicted Jennie as did the smooth-running mechanism of the offices. Not that she was mindless. Tom was mistaken in that estimate. She had the mind of an animal, a rather nice animal. Shrewd, intuitive, seeking security and protection with, in her case, the minimum of effort.

When Lynn joined her at a table in the cafeteria she asked at once, "What's on your mind, Jennie?"

"Angie is going to get married," explained Jennie. "The dumb egg! He's 50 if he's a day! But he's got money. She's leaving in a week. I can't swing the apartment alone. I wondered, would you like to come in with me?"

Lynn considered. She said, after a moment, "I think I'd like to. Tell me what it costs to run the place."

Jennie counted on her fingers, guessing where she was not sure. She had never budgeted, nor had Angie. They had paid for things as they went along. When they bought things for which they could not pay, they paid something on account and trusted that heaven would sufficiently protect the working girl when the final day of reckoning arrived.

Heart of a Wife

Madge and Mother Graham Become Friends Again

Secretly I echoed Mother Graham's plaint, "Why don't they get the thing over with?" as I watched the group around the white "something" fastened to the fence at the other side of the pasture.

From what I had seen through the field glasses, I knew that Winchell, one of the operatives my father was paying to patrol the farm during the menace of the Chinese miscreants, had inspected the white "something" on the fence, as well as Harry Underwood and Hank and Bill. Their wig-wagging to Dicky and the two little boys had been the signal agreed upon that the thing was safe for the children to remove from the fence, as Mr. Underwood had promised them. They might because they had been first to spy the signal.

And yet they waited, even though Dicky and the children had reached the fence. But suddenly, through the field glasses, I saw Harry Underwood gesture toward that white "something"—mysterious no longer, for the field glasses had revealed it to be a white cloth—and then I saw Junior and Roderick advance upon the fence and put their hands upon the signal.

"They're taking it down now," I told Mother Graham, "or at least, they're trying to. It's a white cloth, tied on, and they're evidently having trouble with the knots."

"It'll be a mercy if those devils haven't put poison pins or something into those knots," my mother-in-law declared, and I repressed an unholy desire to shriek out to her a passionate adjuration not to speak again until the children were safe in doors.

THREATENS PUNISHMENT

"They have it untied now," I exclaimed jubilantly, feeling more as if I were in a donjon keep lookout than ever, "and I don't believe there was anything concealed in the cloth that would hurt them. They're holding it up, and pointing to one corner of the cloth."

"It was probably some note or something pinned there," she said, "and that's probably where the poison is."

"Mr. Underwood has just cut something loose from the cloth," I said, "and all of them except Winchell are starting back towards the house, so I don't think we need to worry any more."

"I shan't feel safe until those children are back in this room up here," she said stubbornly, and secretly, unreasoningly, I agreed with her. That unreasoning fear was soon superseded by an anxiety less fantastic but more imminent.

"And what I'm going to tell them when they get back!" she said. "I'll show them both that they can't disobey my orders without paying a penalty. I don't know just exactly how I'm going to punish them, but it's going to be something that they'll remember for a long time, and I expect you to back me up in it."

MADGE EXPLAINS

I caught my breath in panic, for I visualized the two excited, happy little lads returning with their trophy, only to be greeted with grave displeasure and some punishment. It would not be physical, I knew, but one which would take some coveted pleasure away from them and effectually dampen the exaltation of their high adventure. I put the field glasses down, went over to my mother-in-law and put my hand upon her shoulder.

"Mother, dear," I said placatingly, "won't you please take into consideration the fact that Dicky and I are at fault, instead of the children? You did not forbid them especially to go this time, and I gave them permission to do it because they were so excited at having been the first ones to see the white cloth on the fence.

"You know how crazy they are to do all the things that Hank and Bill do, and this time they were especially resentful at not having the chance to unfasten the cloth instead of letting the task be turned over to the larger boys.

"I do not think it is good for them to get such a sense of inferiority as the constant free activities of the older boys are evidently giving them, so I not only permitted them to go but engineered their doing so, in spite of the fact that I knew I was going against your general prohibition, not your express one. They are so happy in this little triumph that I beg you will not punish them for what, after all, is entirely my fault."

Behind the Scenes at Chicago Convention

Above picture (telephoto from Chicago) shows how lame-duck Congressmen are racketeering at the Republican Convention by preying upon the sympathies of the wives of G. O. P. statesmen. The racketeers go from door to door in the prominent hotels, knock boldly, or throw a cork through the transom. When somebody rushes to the door, the lame-duck Congressman tearfully solicits a subscription to the Congressional Record and delivers a speech explaining that he is working his way through Electoral College.

WHAT ABOUT THE VETERANS?

Are They Not Entitled to Jobs, or Failing That, Should Not "The World's Richest Country" Pay Their Bonus Now, While They are in Need? Have These Men That We Called "Heroes" in the War, Suddenly Become Pariahs, Worthy of No Consideration? What Has Happened to Uncle Sam's Gratitude?

Eight million men out of work in the United States include a great number that were sent across the ocean in the war. Their country should supply them with work.

Those men were absent in the days of high war wages and fat war profits. They got a dollar a day plus an opportunity to get gassed, or shot, or both. When they came back the government agreed to pay them a "bonus" by way of compensation for hardships endured and opportunities missed. They are entitled to jobs, and should have them, supplied by the government.

Failing that, they ask that the bonus, which would amount in all to two billion four hundred million dollars, be paid now, while so many of them are in need, instead of paying it to them later.

Some thousands are in Washington, camping out of doors, on piles of straw, close enough to the Senate, the House of Representatives and the White House to disturb the peace of mind of gentlemen that have been appropriating government money, hundreds of millions at a time, for the relief of deserving banks, railroads and other institutions. The time has come to appropriate money to employ the veterans on needed, useful work.

Does it seem unreasonable that former soldiers of the United States in absolute want, many of them separated from their wives and children by poverty, should ask relief from the government, jobs preferred or the bonus, if no jobs are offered?

THE GOVERNMENT ASKED THEM FOR RELIEF, WHEN WAR CAME, and may need them, or others like them, again.

This newspaper believes, as do other newspapers owned by W. R. Hearst throughout the country, that THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD GIVE THE VETERAN A JOB, AND FAILING THAT, HE SHOULD HAVE HIS BONUS to tide over this period of distress.

Jobs would be preferable, the men would rather work to solve their problems. But, the government's duty, if it cannot or will not supply work, is to pay the bonus that has been promised, and must be paid eventually in any case.

This government finds hundreds of millions for banking institutions and railroads in need, for all kinds of financial enterprises, and recently it found ten thousand millions to help Europeans cutting each others throats. It cannot deny its ability to find money for jobs. It lacks THE WILL, not the ability.

A railroad in need of ten to fifty millions, a bank requiring money to repair financial mistakes, may seem pathetically deserving to Congressmen.

But what about a veteran in need, his shoes and clothes worn out, his wife and children in want? Do not thousands of such veterans and their families present a picture at least as pathetic as one railroad that needs government cash?

The veterans make no "socialistic" or "communistic" demand for public funds. They request, jobs, first of all, but if the government will not find work for them, they demand that it pay them, a little in advance, the bonus that must be paid them eventually.

The payment of that bonus was postponed, in the belief that the soldiers would have greater need of the money as they grew older.

But the worst depression in the country's history has overtaken them, their children are young, in need of clothes and food.

This is the time that the men need help, a job preferred, if not their bonus, and the government could give it to them if it will not supply them jobs that would be gratefully accepted.

The attitude of certain newspapers, public men and high financiers toward the war veterans is amazing. It would be humorous, if it were not so dangerously disgraceful.

One Senator from the West who usually talks like an American, said solemnly:

"Not a dollar for those veterans while they remain in Washington."

The presence of veterans in Washington disturbs this Senator. What gave him the idea that Washington, capital of the nation, was made for SENATORS EXCLUSIVELY?

A swarm of lobbyists not long ago settled in Washington to insert their pet schemes into the tariff bill.

And another swarm of lobbyists settled in Washington more recently to keep out of tax bills that which did not suit them. How were those lobbyists treated? They did not sleep out of doors, on straw beds. When they sent in for a Congressman, he came out, and smiled.

Nobody told THEM to get out of Washington and that nothing would be done for them, until they went home. Apparently a lobbyist is sacred, compared to a man poorly dressed, sleeping on straw, asking the government to remember that he did his best when his country needed him.

One New York newspaper, describing veterans that have gone to Washington to ask justice, says:

"This 'bonus army' which is camping at the Capital's gate has a strange and striking personnel. It seems to be a fair cross-section of middle-class America. There are truck drivers and blacksmiths, steel workers and coal miners, stenographers and laborers. Some of them can hardly muster enough English to tell where they came from and why."

The writers of the condescending article does not understand "what started it all. What impelled Negro street laborers and bow-legged cowboys to leave everything familiar behind them and start together on the open road?"

When those men started across the ocean to fight for their country or, as many of them now suspect, to fight for the interests of international bankers, their trip was applauded, they were not described as men "from the Chicago flop-houses."

They were called "noble American heroes," not "a cross-section of middle-class America."

Those that serve UPPER CLASS AMERICA, the America of high finance and high profits, should not despise a "cross-section" made of "truck drivers, blacksmiths, steel workers, coal miners, laborers."

This country needed them in the war, and might some day need them in peace. It might even need them to protect "upper class America" from the danger called "red," from the communistic spectre that haunts the pillow of many a foolish rich man.

The men ask work, and if the country cannot or will not give it to them, IT SHOULD PAY THE BONUS.

The men don't want money to ship it to Europe, never to come back, as this foolish country shipped ten billions in the war, and tens of billions through private financiers later.

Every dollar that the veterans get will be spent HERE IN AMERICA. It will go into every retail store, pay bills and rent overdue, it will help the veterans to preserve their homes from mortgage foreclosure. The money spent by veterans should come from public jobs—but if the nation will not supply the jobs, it should pay the bonus.

Would it be such a dreadful calamity to have two billions, four hundred millions spent in every state in this time of depression? Would it not, on the contrary, give business and prosperity a forward push?

This is a time of distress, of economic danger, a time when high finance, frightened by its own foolishness, by its shipping abroad of tens of billions of dollars, holds the purse strings tight, refusing to lend to those that would give employment, if they could borrow in the ordinary way.

This country faces a danger greater than that of the World War which NEVER REALLY THREATENED US, any more than the present depression threatens financial stability on the planet Mars.

We have now on our hands a dangerous war, strange and mysterious, that we do not understand.

It is a war of FACTS AND DEPRESSION AGAINST PROSPERITY. The nation's spending power has suddenly been cut down. Where there is no buying there is no manufacturing, where there is no manufacturing there is no hiring.

As the fields in a drought require water, so our present national condition requires cash and its expenditure.

Money and credit we have without limit. This nation has more than four billion dollars in gold locked up to preserve our gold standard.

In the war to help other nations, strangers to us, we increased our national debt by twenty thousand millions of dollars, not hesitating a second. We were proud of ourselves, bands were playing, crowds cheering, as we shipped billions across the ocean.

Money, spent by the veterans and others, now idle, would start a flow of money through trade and industry. Can you who read this suggest any possible way of stimulating business and at the same time helping those that need help, as effective as creating public works to give employment?

The spending of wages thus earned would do for business what irrigation does for growing plants, sending the money directly to the roots of the plant. The payment of good wages for good work would send the money received by the soldiers directly to the roots of trade and industry.

It is reported in Washington that Congress will soon adjourn TO GET AWAY FROM THE VETERANS GATHERED IN WASHINGTON AND LEAVE THEM STRANDED THERE.

If Congress adjourns, and Congressmen scatter, of course there will be no power in Washington that could give the men jobs or their bonus.

It is not believable that such a cowardly course will be pursued or that Congressmen will run away from their duty.

Men that have gone to war for their country are at least entitled to work for a living. And if their country will not give them jobs that would support them and their families, they are entitled to payment of their bonus, and THEY SHOULD HAVE IT.
